☐ I think that we now have enough Majority Renegades to nominate one each month. Sam Nunn would be my nomination for January. He showed his colors (no pun intended) by joining the rabble that invaded Forsyth County.

306

☐ You would not have been charmed at the spectacle white Virginia staged for the Rebberend Doctah King. You'd have supposed that the Great Widow and Winnie Mandela had run Virginia's observances of the sacred nativity. Tho' the holiday is now officially designated (by the state legislature) as Lee-Jackson-King Day, very few schools and banks acknowledged in any way the memories of Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson. (Jefferson Davis's birthday on June 3 vanished, of course, about 20-25 years ago.) Remarkably, it wasn't the whites who protested the linking of Lee's and Jackson's names with the Rebberend Doctah's; it was the Negroes who protested joining the Holy One's name with that of Confederate heroes.

☐ I do hope we keep hearing from Zip 205. She certainly rippled our pond.

885

☐ Last year a man wrote to the Safety Valve that he was disgusted he was not permitted to work on the King "holiday." He decided to donate his day's pay for "King Day" to Instauration. I work in ZOG Prison Industries and don't get paid much, but I'm donating my "King Day" pay to Instauration as well. It's an appropriate way to fight back.

Zip withheld

☐ My admiration for the Holocaust revisionists is second to none. Unlike many Instaurationists I think they are winning the battle. I sense a subtle shift away from the six million figure and the gas chamber "evidence." Now the Chosen often don't mention a specific number, and they talk about the "killings" without dwelling on the methods used. Isn't that a victory of sorts? Were you expecting a confession they had exaggerated and lied?

601

☐ The Homer Lea piece (Feb. 1987) was very good, even though it looks as though he went native in China. My only complaint is that our professional corps of military peacetime officers is way below the norm. A citizen army similar to the Swiss type, in which all men serve in the reserve for years and years, is the correct model.

404

☐ Robert Hall's articles were most elucidating. The Great War was Europe's suicide. In the 1920s all the countries knew it and yet it happened again at the end of the next decade. Where were the statesmen?

617

☐ When the District of Columbia insurance companies began testing life policy applicants for the Pink Plague, the faerie folk had their legislative vassals enact an ordinance that forbade the companies from denying insurance to anyone who tested positive for AIDS antibodies. The underwriters countered by ending the writing of life policies and are moving their offices out of the capital. Representatives of the infected homophiles claim it is unsporting to refuse them the opportunity for a grand funeral when the actuarial risk could be spread over the straight population. They sure hate us.

200

☐ I enjoyed the short story, "Trend" (Jan. 1987). It was sharp-edged, twisty, amusing, something one could give to a person who can't stand the usual tendentious stuff. True, it's pulp-type fiction, but there's nothing wrong with that. It may lack the wordcraft of, say, a John Upkike, but it's far more engaging than anything he writes -- a neat, futuristic version of O. Henry's "Gift of the Magi." To me, literature is what engages, what endures. Upkike's work will be passé in 30 years, but this little story, due to its relevance, may still be read. The author should be encouraged. Fiction and poetry help to create a much needed mystique of race, a vision which transcends the merely material and scientific. No one, for instance, will ever be willing to sacrifice his life because whites have an IQ 20 points higher than blacks, or so that some imbecilic Nordic Yuppie 200 years hence can watch reruns of Dynasty while having his BMW serviced. But people will always be willing to risk their lives to become what they are in their being's deepest recesses, or to radically change intolerable conditions. We need art, that invocation of magic, to get out of ourselves, to act, or to seriously prepare for action. The recitation of racial "truths" can never accomplish that.

920

☐ It is dismaying that Zip 456 can't see that Instauration's criticism of Christianity is a documentation of mainline Christianity's determination to destroy our race. The only way that reading the 250 pages of confusion, contradictions and falsehoods in the New Testament can convince someone this is a religion for us is to have the complete works of Nietzsche at hand during the reading session.

074

☐ I would like to see our army brought home from Europe and see us stop spending more on the defense of Europe than Europeans themselves spend.

☐ I read with interest in Instauration (Feb. 1987) the origins of the Juppies who were caught with their hands in the till on Wall Street. Martin Siegel is the latest. His bio does not read like one of the Chosen. He's a Theta Chi, his father works at Sears as a salesman. But if he looks like one and behaves like one, I would suspect he is one.

☐ While Gore Vidal agrees with us, I don't consider him an ally. Homosexuals carry a deep dislike for the established order because it is anti-gay. Vidal's position could be the result of his rage, not his intellectual honesty. For years, French writer André Gide was hailed for breaking with communism in the 1930s and revealing its tyrannical core. Now we find Gide's displeasure had more to do with Russia's anti-gay policy than with ideology. When, oh when, are these sissies ever going to get their minds off it? It rules their lives.

☐ Polish plumbers, electricians and others are going to East Germany by the thousands. Here the stores are empty. The East German stores are overflowing with goods. My family just returned from the Soviet Union. Most party leaders are being replaced with men in their 30s, 40s and 50s. Ethnic Slavs are being granted more money to move to non-European Soviet republics. Polish scientists and intellectuals are saying that because Iran is a potential danger to Israel, the U.S. congressional lackeys will be doing "all kinds of foolishness." As for the racial problem, the average Pole has never seen any black anywhere, except on TV. He thinks that America is heaven on earth -- a place where people have "free information." Hah!

☐ The Ivan Boesky gang neatly destroyed the free-market theories of Milton Friedman. Everyone is calling for more government control of Las Vegas East. Miltie has his racial cousins to blame for this, though don't expect him ever to admit it.

☐ February is Black History Month. January is fast becoming Martin Luther King Jr. Month. Sometime within the next decade, December will undoubtedly become Howard Beach Remembrance Month. Winter, always a physical ordeal, now bids fair to become a psychological one as well.

☐ One might say that any intelligent minority could do what the Jews have done, or undone. O.K., but why has no other intelligent minority ever done so?

☐ Recipe for happiness: look upon our species as a bunch of chattering, oversized monkeys. That way, anything that occurs above the normal simian level will be seen as pure gain. Recipe for sorrow: regard our species, or a part of it, in exalted terms.

402

☐ ABC's Good Morning America sent a correspondent to Ireland to do live reports on St. Patrick's Day. During one piece with Dublin's mayor, broadcast from the site of a parade, I distinctly heard the blare of a Fats Domino record. Even the Irish don't celebrate their day with their own music any more.

☐ Several weeks ago I stopped in a local deli to pick up some newspapers. My town is easily 75% Jewish. A couple of middle-aged Jews in line ahead of me were lamenting that as certain Jewish families moved out of their respective blocks, they were replaced by Israelis, who are moving here in ever increasing numbers. These two Jews were both baffled and slighted by the way the Israeli newcomers ignored them, spurned their overtures of friendship and just plain refused to talk to them. "I just can't understand it," sighed one. "I'm Jewish myself!" The older nodded solemnly in agreement. Apparently the Israelis consider themselves to be some kind of superior Jew, the Chosen of the Chosen. Their chauvinistic pride, however, did not in any way impede their flight to the authentic land of milk and honey, an ocean removed from that sandbox of sleaze in the Middle East. I smiled to myself as I thought of the old adage, "A Zionist is a Jew that wants some other Jew to go to Palestine."

☐ Zip 400 (Feb. 1987) hit the nail right on the head with his son's experience in a private school. My husband and I had similar problems in an elite private school where our son was shunned and chided by his white peers for not being part of the Mercedes, BMW, country club set. After spending $16,000, we finally wised up and put him in a white public school. However, the Jewish influence continues to plague us. His Jewish teacher had a Hanukkah celebration at Christmas, including a menorah. America's "kosherization" is fully entrenched -- with no relief in sight. We would welcome any advice.

☐ Safety Valve is the weakest section of your publication. You lower the quality of the whole by catering to the lowest common denominator of your readers -- old vigilante Constitution worshippers, trivia freaks, drawing room heroes. Please publish only those letters that deal intelligently with material that's already appeared in Instauration. If a letter writer wants to go on about something else, and can write, feature the letter as an article. All these cramped little missives, lacking paragraphs, running over at the mouth, make the magazine appear disorderly and a bit unprofessional. Be a little more anti-democratic and refuse to allow every peabrain with an opinion to express himself.

☐ God, what a horrible place is Bangladesh! India is pretty hopeless as well, but it does have its little charms. Bangladesh has absolutely nothing going for it.

Itinerant subscriber

☐ The Willie and Marv cartoons are excellent and ought to be retained. But how about using political subterfuge and "salting" them throughout the magazine? It would soften the impact and would make Instauration more "socially acceptable."

203

☐ Swartzbaugh's latest (Feb. 1987) article is about as thoroughly abstract as anything I've ever read. That makes him a genius, I suppose. I simply can't agree with Swartzbaugh that the "generic form" of racialism is "nihilism," which he defines as "the absence of a hierarchy of worth." I think nihilism is and will continue to be a minority mode of white racism. I'm not sure I see how the partial loss of the caste function of Nordics -- or even its total loss in the future -- will utterly undermine the importance of ideas like equality and inequality, as Swartzbaugh appears to assert. In the past, Nordics or whites have been very much a caste in places like Sparta and Mississippi, and very much a homogeneous family in places like Iceland. Yet nihilism has always been a rarity among us. Is Swartzbaugh's logic eluding me? If so, I wish he'd try again to explain why it is that economic or demographic changes will gradually turn us into nihilistic racists. My feeling is that he has been seduced by a theoretical vision.

☐ Rumor has it that a fiendishly cruel torture/interrogation device is being used by the Mossad on "uncooperative subjects." The interrogatee is strapped to a chair inside a small booth with back-projection screens in front and to the left and right. Then, non-stop, he is forced to watch and listen to film clips of a progression of Jewish personae like, say, Bette Midler, Bella Abzug, "Dr. Ruth," Joan Rivers, Henny Youngman, Congressman Stephen Solarz, Menahem Begin, et alii, et aliae, ad nauseam. No non-Jew has (to date) been able to endure more than 48 hours of this mental torture. The beauty of it is that it leaves no physical marks on the victim's body.

☐ Please add to the "White Devil's Dictionary," "Goyfeed." It was inspired by "Prolefeed," the cheap, rubbishy entertainment "fed" to the proles by the INGSOC Party in Orwell's 1984 to keep them happy and unthinking. It's the same crap the Chosen feed our people for the same reasons.

605

☐ Zip 021 (Jan. 1987) asks, What good can it possibly do to pursue revisionism? To expose Roosevelt as guilty of our sailors' deaths at Pearl Harbor will discredit the liberals who use him as an idol. To expose the wild exaggerations about WWII Jewish death camps is even more important. It will rouse the American taxpayer out of his passivity about our government's annual gift of billions of dollars to Israel. The Jewish lobby repeatedly and zealously sponsors movies and broadcasts designed to keep the Holocaust alive for financial reasons. Revisionism will help to stop this brainwashing.

☐ My wife's boss in one of my state's innumerable agencies is a "high yeller" from the Mississippi delta. One of 16 chillun, she climbed out of a sharecropper's daughter existence with the help of the civil rights movement. Since she can broker a large number of black votes, she was awarded a job that pays $52,000 a year. Two weeks ago, this black Mambo came in sporting her blue contact lenses. Her straight hair, perhaps from her white genes, is already dyed light brown. I suppose you could say she is a very pretty mulattress. Jokingly, she came up to my wife, who has natural blue eyes, and said, "Chile, when they gets through with me, you's gonna be the closest thing to a nigger in here!"

☐ The number of tenured faculty positions in "Jewish studies" in the U.S. has risen from two to 600 in less than 20 years (Inklings, Jan. 1987). And this may be only the beginning. It should be obvious why Jews would love to get paid to spend their lives glorifying themselves (and condemning the rest of us as a byproduct). But I would like to suggest a motive for mediocre Majority intellects entering Jewish, black, Hispanic or women's studies. These fields flatter those who know very little about the past into believing they know a lot. Western history is vastly greater and more significant than these protracted exercises in -- speaking relatively -- "trivial pursuit."

820

I be so afraid of AIDS, I be the fatha of only two new kids las' year.

☐ As Instaurationists, we should all make an effort to support gifted children. The few who are born are a national treasure.

920

☐ To Zip 074 (Feb. 1987): Excellent letter; excellent thinking. It is no longer possible to speak of "Americans" in any meaningful sense. Today almost everyone in the world is an American, the only slight distinction being between those who are here now and those who are on the way.

223

☐ If there is doubt about the power of the black vote, let it be dispelled. It controls much more than the Negro 12% of the population indicates. In the 1986 election in California for the Senate, Alan Cranston defeated Ed Zschau by a very small margin. Although Zschau received a larger white vote than Cranston, the latter won because the blacks supported him en bloc. If blacks had been as divided as whites, Zschau would have won.

928

☐ Zip 687, who wrote concerning "freedom not to associate," would be amused by a story which reached me from a friend in Forsyth County. He was not a participant in the protests or counterprotests, but his views can be considered those of a typical (until the last two decades) Southern conservative. He was asked on the street by a journalist to give an opinion about the fracas. He answered roughly as follows: "All the people of Forsyth County ask is to be left alone and to be free to choose their own friends and associates." A black spokesman, standing within hearing distance, exclaimed angrily: "You can't do dat! Dis is a free country!"

377

☐ I have always wondered about the fascination of the American right with Homer Lea (Feb. 1987). The esteem seems to be misplaced. Lea was blatantly wrong in many of his predictions. For instance, he believed the British Empire was doomed by the "ever resurgent armies of Germany." He certainly missed the mark on that one. Lea's counsel of a British alliance with the U.S. against Germany was atrocious from a white racial perspective. The fact that he was admired by two such boneheads as Field Marshal Lord Robert and Kaiser Bill should forewarn us about his perspicacity. But these shortcomings were not limited to his off-the-mark predictions, promotion of Teutonophobia and admiration of history's fumblers. The worst thing about him, as noted in his book, The Valor of Ignorance, was his love affair with the teeming ant people of China. While the Japanese may be a geopolitical menace to the Caucasians, they are nothing compared to the billion Chinese. Lea was an early promoter of America's present-day suicidal policies of developing and industrializing the hordes of China. This is such an abominable misjudgment as to exclude Lea permanently from our pantheon of heroes.

404

☐ Re that confab of George Shultz and Oliver Tambo: Now I have no doubts about the stories of Shultz having tattoos on his rear end. A perfect examplar of the entire Reagan gerontocracy. I think Tom Metzger summed it up in the "Race and Reason" show when he said of all the different special interest groups that have opposed his program, he has received the most vehement opposition from "white conservatives."

592

☐ I wrote a letter to the local fishwrap, the Philadelphia Inquirer, that democracy is "the control of the underclass at the expense of the middle class for the enrichment of the upper class." It was not printed.

190

☐ I saw Richard Cohen of the Washington Post on the Donahue show and was intrigued by his blue eyes. I wonder if they are contact lenses similar to those mentioned in Instauration (Nov. 1986).

101

☐ South Africa and Israel are surrounded by hostile neighbors and have an inner Fifth Column. Prognosis: poor.

300

☐ Since there ain't any dough or glory in writing the truth, I compliment Mr. Hall for his WWI and WWII essays. He is giving us an historical record.

912

☐ I believe there is a plan to convince most Majority members in this country that they are not Majority members or Aryans, but mongrels. I'll give you a brief sort of family history to prove the point. My paternal grandparents came from England and Germany. My mother's family, of Scots-Irish and German origin, has been in this country for many generations. It has been the family myth that her side of the family has some Cherokee blood. My maternal grandmother spent three years tracing and documenting our family genealogy. She was disappointed not to find any redskins in our family tree. It always made her feel somehow exotic to think she had a minute quantity of Indian blood. She was somewhat consoled, however, to discover that our earliest ancestor in America, the Scots-Irishman, was a part-time pirate. He had taken part in a mutiny on a British ship, which was turned over to the American Revolutionary forces in Georgia. He was a colorful enough character to take the place of the mythical Indian.

The point is, I have talked to scores of whites who believe they have a distant Indian ancestor. If all the whites in this country who think like this actually did have some small stain of Indian blood, there would have to have been 10 million squaws on the frontier. I must admit I was glad to find no Indians in my lineage. Had it turned out differently, it would not have changed my racial views one whit. Instead of having children, I would have had a vasectomy.

☐ It is extremely difficult to maintain any semblance of patriotism or even loyalty toward a government which grants special privileges and rights to the least intelligent, least dignified, most parasitic, most dishonest, most crime-prone and most hideous elements of the U.S. population. Federal and state governments obviously place a greater value on the lives of the Third World creatures within our borders than they place upon the race which established this country. "Our" Congress is a slavish, spit-licking satellite of Israel. Which is worse? Slavery under Russians or slavery under Jews? We have reached the point where our only reason for existing is for the convenience, preservation and glorification of Jewry.

☐ I think what the overanxious writer of the critique of textbook genetics (Dec. 1986) was trying to say is that since the human races evolved separately, whites share no genes with blacks unless their immediate historical ancestors miscegenated. This is so not only because the two races diverged so long ago, but because the only ancestor blacks and whites have in common was profoundly prehuman, although most probably anthropoid. For each anthropoid racial strain of protoman to have become human represents the phenomenon of "convergent evolution," such as appears to have occurred with the fox and cat families after each diverged from a common ancestral stock millions of years ago.

Might blacks ever have evolved to "converge" upon white qualities? I favor Desmond Morris's passing remark in his introduction to The Naked Ape: "The simple tribal groups living today are not primitive. They are stultified. Truly primitive tribes have not existed for thousands of years . . . . Any society that has failed to advance has in some sense failed, 'gone wrong.' Something has happened to hold it back, something that is working against the natural tendency of the species to explore and investigate the world around it."

Note the ethnocentricity of the assumption that exploration and investigation are natural to "the species" in toto unless an individual culture takes a wrong turn and locks itself into a lower stage of development. The fact that all of Africa was composed of such "simple tribal groups" when Europeans first encountered that continent would suggest that the African race of man was by nature stultified; culture emanates from and conforms to inner nature, after all. Moreover, the continued misery and maladaptation of modern blacks suggest that although certain black individuals -- often of mixed blood -- are capable of "converging" upon white evolution, the vast majority of the race are genetic dead ends.

☐ I may have stumbled on the ultimate oxymoron. During all the January hoopla about St. Martin's Day, I saw on TV the man who is the "Martin Luther King Jr. Professor of Christian Ethics" at Boston University.

317

☐ Did anyone ask Fawn Hall if she could type?

327

☐ The plight of Zip 440 regarding raising his children in a normal manner while trying to get a good education is a common one. My oldest daughter is exceptionally bright. We took her to a nearby renowned private school for evaluation and perhaps admittance. I looked around and didn't like what I saw. Most of the kids were wearing yarmulkes, and most of the teachers were flaky as hell. They put my daughter through the standard battery, and were amazed at her 164 IQ.

Although they offered her immediate admittance, I thought she would be better off in a more normal public school atmosphere than around that crowd. I was right. She always maintained top spot in her class, as well as being active in ballet, cheerleading and all that good girlie stuff. On her first attempt at a SAT test, in her junior year, she got a 1576, breaking the old state record by a point. To show the inheritance of intelligence, I must mention that her first cousin in Arizona did the same thing there at the same time, and another cousin set the highest score for a military dependent in Germany.

I am pleased with the public school education my children received. The school system should be the number one consideration when choosing a place to live, if you have kids or expect to have them. Check out the schools personally before you move. Check class size and racial makeup. There are only 2% blacks here and about that many Orientals. But there is no shortage of Jews. I'd say about 20% of the student body. This is not all bad, however. Momma and Poppa demand the very best for Sammy and Sarah. The kids themselves are not too obnoxious. They haven't learned how to be real Jews yet. Our school board is another thing -- 100%!

A final bit of advice on raising the little dears. Beat the be-Jesus out of them every time they screw up. It damn near cost me a wife, but I'd do it again if I had to do it over. My kids turned out great, and I'm proud of every one of them.

☐ It is not fair to call Nathaniel Hawthorne anti-Semitic because he found Jews to be physically revolting. He did not propose any anti-Jewish policies.

208

☐ I am not a Christian, but I seem to recall that there is something in the New Testament about there being more joy in heaven over one sinner who repents than over nine and ninety just men who need no repentance. Well, there may be joy in heaven, but there is precious little consolation for those of us still on earth who have witnessed the consequences of the warmongers and megalomaniacs whose vainglorious policies have resulted in the dissolution of the British Empire, the destruction of the real heart of Europe (and therefore the rotting of the limbs), the occupation of our continent by the external Super Powers and the genocide of our race by massive immigration. In our dope-ridden, multiracial piggery we British still are deluded enough to think of one of our destroyers as our "saviour" and his American co-conspirator as our "friend."

British subscriber

☐ Whitey has found his "role" for the 21st century: baby incubator! Majority member Whitehead (naturally, a garbage collector -- destiny of all of us in "New America") rents his wife out for $10,000 to rich minorityite Stern, who, the media report, "wanted to continue his bloodline since most of his family died in the Holocaust." Mrs. Whitehead either sees an opportunity to make national headlines (the late Andy Warhol's "Everyone will be famous for five minutes") or truthfully discovers that a biological bond is stronger than a pecuniary one. A tug-of-war ensues over half-Jewish Baby M, as the case goes to a Jewish judge. Baby M's court appointed Jewish attorney Abraham "recommends" that Baby M be placed with the biological (Jewish) father and Judge Sorkow agrees. Gentile mother Whitehead is denied visitation rights. A legal precedent is set.

☐ In January 1989, the new U.S. President should say (but probably won't) to the heads of the CIA and NSC:

> Nixon, Carter and Reagan were embarrassed by you Rambo types. This isn't going to happen to me. I'll fire you immediately if I find out about any "cowboy" operations in your organizations. And don't even think you can blackmail me. I'll tell the American people all about that if you try.

☐ I feel as if Zip 782's report on the state of current affairs in Britain was edited severely so as not to depress us further with a more graphic description of the racial mess there. My teenage nieces moved to London with their mother and stepfather six years ago. The girls visit my parents at least once a year, and the eldest, 19, brought a Welsh girlfriend back with her this past summer. I was rather taken aback by the positive observations both young ladies had for Houston -- of all places. They used such flattering language as "beautiful architecture," "handsome inhabitants," "lively city," "wealthy citizenry," "civilized traffic" and "courteous people." In 30 days they saw more money spent on restaurants and gasoline than they had seen spent in three years in Merrie Olde England. Most of the Texans I know regard Houston as experiencing very bad times, yet these Brits found it to be a heavenly cornucopia. It is also worth noting that they both hope to come back to Texas permanently. The Welsh girl asked me if I had read The Camp of the Saints. Smiling, I said, "yes." She commented:

> I do not believe in violence as a means of solving cultural differences, but I do believe in self-defense. As I understand it, a Texan may own a gun to defend his home and family. That is not possible in England. Consequently, many innocent people are unnecessarily roughed up. Raspail may be accurate in his final chapters regarding the "dam break," and it appears as if you "cowboys," unlike the British wimps, will stand and fight. I rather like that attitude.

☐ The abject role of the white male in society was laid out recently by black comic Flip Wilson. The strutting little Negro jokester presented a skit in which he reacts with the first word that comes to mind after hearing another word. In its abbreviated form, the verbal triggering went like this:

> Sambo. Cracka!
> Spade. Redneck!
> Jungle Bunny. Honky!
> Nigga. DAID HONKY!

Did any whites who laughed at this vicious put-down of their race comprehend that they were amused by their own debasement? If a white comedian had turned the skit around to make it come out as "Honky. DEAD NIGGER!", he not only would find it no laughing matter, but his career would come to an abrupt and undistinguished end.

☐ Long ago Instauration's editor formulated the only response to talk of violence: get up and walk out of the room. Again and again, we have seen the guy who starts the talk about guns, violence and "doing something now" exposed as a government informer.

☐ Oh, sweet Jesus. John Nobull, taking a vacation from editing the Mosley-Guinness Family Newsletter, is over here sizing us up. I like his comments on our neighbors to the north. I'll have to visit there myself. I find Canadians, however, dull and filled with misinformation about us. Note how many you find in Florida.

☐ I have noticed a certain stridency creeping into recent issues of Instauration. We must guard against this. Let our enemies rave and become hysterical. We should remain as always restrained and gentlemanly.

424

☐ The real scandal of the Iranian arms deal is that we do not have an American foreign policy; we have an Israeli foreign policy. A year ago Vice-President George Bush met with the Prime Minister of Israel, who told him Israel was worried about the sharp drop in revenues flowing to the Arab countries. If driven to financial ruin, desperate Arab states might attack Israel just to take their citizens' minds off their troubles. Bush went to Saudi Arabia to speak about the collapsing oil prices and urged the Saudis to raise the price of oil. Our controlled press covered up the real purpose of this meeting by reporting that Bush was currying favor with the big oil companies, hoping to get their support for his presidential campaign. Failing to persuade the Saudis to raise prices and thereby get pressure off Israel, the U.S. bombed Libya, ostensibly in retaliation for the bombing of the German nightclub. After the attack on Gaddafi, the word went out from Jerusalem that it was not the Libyans that planted the bomb after all, but a Lebanese and a Jordanian, who were backed by Syria. Then there was agitation to bomb Syria, this at the very same time some freed hostages were thanking Syria for helping to obtain their release.

If the Iranian arms deal could have been kept secret and carried to its successful conclusion, with the release of all the hostages, Israel would have told Reagan, "you owe us one, so roll out your bombers and bomb Syria." Some of the armed forces spent the summer agitating Libya, trying to provoke Gaddafi into cracking, while Washington was planting rumors to make the Libyans believe that American forces were about to attack. Gaddafi was called crazy for having such ideas.

☐ Thomas H. Wyman, the fired CBS chief, wins hands down the Dummy Renegade of the Year award. To act as the white knight for his company, he selects a man whose reputation is well known. This man sacks Wyman and institutes drastic cuts. Employee morale, already low, sinks lower. Wyman should have known what he was getting in the person of Larry Tisch. All kinds of anti-Wyman leaks were printed by the media. Gentiles such as Andy Rooney and Dan Rather are not about to do the same number on Tisch as they did on Wyman.

☐ So they've finally gone after Reagan. I'm only surprised it took so long. All Ronnie had to do was show an inch of Achilles' heel and the rabid media jackals started tearing him to pieces. But even now, cornered like a rat, RR could only refer to his Mideast mentor as that "unnamed country." Of course, he could go out with a blaze of glory and say what needs to be said about Israel, but we are not talking about a brave and glorious man. Be assured that whatever Reagan accomplished in his term and a half will vanish in the next two years and America will continue its decline as if the past six-year period had never existed. Republican efforts to "turn America around" are comparable to the Dutch finger in the dike. If nothing else, this should be a final and painful lesson to conservatives about the futility of effecting constructive change from within the system. That's like an AIDS patient trying to heal himself with holistic medicine and positive thinking. The only thing that can save the Republic at this late date is to be suddenly blessed with a latter-day Sulla who could pull off a coup and suspend democracy until things were back on track. Instead, we will probably see a legislative coup by the Democrat-liberal-minority coalition that will drag us back onto their track.

☐ I was glad to hear of J.B. Stoner's release from prison (Stirrings, April 1987), although his "praising God for AIDS" makes it sound as though he lost a little of his attic insulation while in the jug. One effect of his ordeal that has not been commented on is that, as a convicted felon, he is not eligible to run for public office. As a candidate for various statewide offices here in Georgia over the years, Stoner kept the flame of free speech flickering. Most notable was the court case which forbade TV stations from censoring his ads proclaiming, "You can't have law and order and niggers too!" While he will no doubt continue to be active for the rest of his life, he will forever be denied the status of a candidate and the extra protection that status provides.

☐ The appearance of the "Pedro" cartoon last year was one too many. Poorly drawn, with excruciating dialect and a weak message, it gave one the apprehension that the magazine would become a gallery of ethnic stereotypes which would do nothing to edify the reader and do the publication no credit. Two such are more than enough and for a magazine that strives to put substance over style, Willie's dialect is an irritating inconsistency. The impact should come from what is being said, not its fashion of pronunciation. Marv's monologue is unencumbered by artificial dialect. Here's one vote to do the same for Willie.

☐ We all know that there are issues which make a Jerry Lewis turn very serious indeed (and I don't mean muscular dystrophy). What I'd like to know is whether there are any issues which make a Johnny Carson turn serious (beyond the size of his latest alimony payment, that is).

HOW MANY NORDICS ARE LEFT IN THE WORLD?

THE EXTRAPOLATION TECHNIQUE developed by Wilmot Robertson in his book, The Dispossessed Majority, to estimate the number of Nordics in the United States can be extended to estimate the size of the Nordic population worldwide.

Carleton Coon in his Races of Europe provided the first reliable postwar percentage tables for racial subgroups in European populations. Robertson's method was to total the number of Americans claiming descent from each Old World white nation. He then subtracted from this figure the Alpine and Mediterranean allocations of either Coon or Carl Brigham in his Study of American Intelligence to obtain an estimate of the number of Nordics in the United States.

Two major difficulties are encountered when the Coon-Robertson technique is applied on a global level.

Despite the insights of John R. Baker in Race (1974), many whites are commonly described as "Nordic" only because, on balance, they more closely resemble that subrace than any other. The ability of such individuals to transmit predominantly Nordic genes to the next generation varies. Consequently, some doubt exists as to whether marginal individuals would not be better assigned to a separate group.

A second difficulty is that census figures released by the governments of several predominantly white countries are often either deliberately or inadvertently misleading. In the United States, Hispanics are often listed as whites. Various British governments have understated the number of black residents, presumably to avoid alarming British natives. There is evidence that the number of Indo-Chinese in Australia is higher than the authorities admit.

Any extrapolation based on official statistics, the consistent trend of which is to "play down" the number of nonwhites, will inevitably result in an overestimation of the Nordic population.

Granted that these factors preclude accuracy, the present study is useful to the extent that it attempts to establish the maximum number of Nordics in the world population.

Method. Each of the 99 countries listed in The Australian Almanac (1985) as having a "white" or "European" component in its population was included in this demographic exercise. In the case of predominantly European nations, the Almanac often gives percentages, or estimated numbers, of minorities. These were subtracted from the total population of each country, as was a figure equal to twice the number of self-styled Jews. The balance of the white population was then multiplied by either Coon's or Robertson's Nordic percentage, whichever seemed to be more appropriate. The same procedure was applied to the various white minorities in the predominantly white countries and a total obtained for the Nordics in both categories.

For example, the estimated population of Denmark in 1983 was 5,116,464. Of these, the Almanac states that 96.5% are of Danish origin, 1.7% German and 0.4% Swedish. In addition, the Almanac lists 6,500 Jews. Now 5,116,464 × 96.5% = 4,937,387 − (2 × 6,500) = 4,924,387. On the Coon-Robertson index 85% of Danes are Nordic. Accordingly, the subtotal is 4,185,729. Since Coon-Robertson puts the Nordic share of the German population in Germany at 40% and of the Swedish population in Sweden at 100%, to this 4,185,729 figure are added Denmark's Germans (86,979 × 40% = 34,791) and Swedes (20,465 x 100%). The maximum Nordic population of Denmark is therefore estimated at 4,240,985.

With regard to nations having predominantly nonwhite populations, the countries of origin of minority whites is usually stated in the Almanac. Where little interbreeding is likely to have occurred (as in Near Eastern countries), the small white figure is multiplied by the Coon-Robertson percentage. In cases where interbreeding has occurred to some extent, the percentage is reduced by no more than half. For Latin American countries where the European population is stated to be predominantly of Spanish and/or Italian descent, the Nordic percentage is assumed to be 5. This may be too high, but the aim of the study is to discover the upper limit of the Nordic population.

Since Robertson has already exhaustively analyzed the racial demography of his country, it is permissible to accept his figure of 113,362,893 Nordics for the United States. Although little useful information is available in English on the demography of the USSR, it seems unlikely that the Nordic or near-Nordic population of the Soviet Union could exceed Robertson's estimate of 10%. This is the percentage applied (rather hesitantly, it must be admitted) to arrive at a USSR figure of about 26 million.

Results. According to the method outlined above, the maximum number of Nordics in the world in the early 1980s was 308 million. Of these, 82.7 million were in the nine countries with a Nordic majority: Belgium, Denmark, Finland, Holland, Iceland, New Zealand, Norway, Sweden and the United Kingdom.

Approximately 73% of the worldwide Nordic population is found in 90 different countries in which Nordics number from below 1,000 in several cases, up to 49% in Australia.

In the absence of reliable government statistics, The Australian Almanac can only serve as a relatively reliable data base for the purpose of extrapolation. It claims to have been compiled from several sources, including the Asia 1985 Yearbook, the Fischer Weltalmanach 1985, the 1985 South American Handbook, the 1984 Pacific Islands Year

Book, the 1984 Statesman's Yearbook, Whitaker's Almanack 1985, the 1985 World Almanac and Book of Facts, and various government bureaus of statistics.

The Coon-Robertson method of extrapolation appears to be capable of application to all countries with the possible exception of the Soviet Union, where insufficient data are available.

Where this study has applied percentage figures different from those used by Robertson, changes were believed to be justified on the basis that Robertson's percentages were devised specifically for immigrants to America from the countries concerned. In some instances, particularly those involving refugees, the American sample would not be identical to the Nordic percentages within these populations either at home or in other countries of emigration. In any event, the changes were so minimal as not to be statistically significant in the global total.

A more accurate estimate of the world's Nordic population could be obtained by direct observation, using trained observers and statistically controlled sampling techniques. Unfortunately, no organization or foundation which might be interested in such a project has the resources to undertake it.

Implications. There are more than three people in one nation alone (China) for every Nordic in the world. Absolute numbers of Nordics are declining everywhere. "The average number of children born to a couple in the Western nations is 15% below the minimum number of children a couple needs to replace itself" (Lieberson, 1986). Despite the high fecundity of Third World immigrants in Sweden, deaths began to exceed total births there by 1976 (Carlson, 1986). Other white nations are now experiencing the same drastic reduction in birthrates.

Of the 12 European Economic Community countries, only Ireland has a high enough level of fertility to keep its population growing. "The level for sustaining a population is 2.1 children per woman. In West Germany, the figure is down to 1.33. In Denmark it is 1.4; in Italy, 1.51. The British fertility rate has drifted steadily from 2.44 in 1970 to 1.77 last year" (Brown, 1986).

Equally alarming, the ratio of Nordic births within white nations is declining. From 1972-77, the percentage of colored births rose from 18% to 21% in Greater London, from 18% to 26% in Birmingham, from 25% to 32% in Leicester and from 25% to 28% in Wolverhampton (Powell, 1979).

Meanwhile, the total number of the world's colored people is doubling about every 35 years. The global population (4.5 billion in 1980) is expected to reach 6.1 billion by 2000 and may be 8 billion by 2025. "In the less developed countries of Africa, Latin America and Asia, there are currently some 3.6 billion people" (Lieberson, 1986).

Conclusions. The assumptions behind the Coon-Robertson extrapolation technique are sufficiently valid for estimating the current maximum world Nordic population. Since global population projections are freely available, it should be possible to devise a further method to predict:

(1) The date of eclipse of the Nordic populations in each of the nine nations where they currently form a majority.

(2) The date of the Nordic race's extinction.

MOVE OVER, PORTNOY -- HERE COMES JACOB SILKSTONE

THE WORDS INSOMNIA, amnesia, pessimist, cursed, terrified, addicted, corpulent, peptic ulcer, indigestion, anorexic, dyspeptic and unobtainable comfort all appear in the opening paragraph. Welcome to the world of the "contemporary Jewish novel."

The author of Blood Libels is London-born Clive Sinclair, who was chosen in 1983 as one of the twenty "Best of Young British Novelists" by something called the British Book Marketing Council. Not to be confused with Clive Sinclair, the British computer mogul, this Sinclair is literary editor of the London Jewish Chronicle and increasingly known as "the British Philip Roth." (Roth himself has taken to haunting England.)

Sinclair's last two works -- Hearts of Gold and Bed Bugs -- were collections of vulgar, semi-deranged short stories which understandably shocked the British but were dismissed by one jaded American reviewer as "second-plantings from Roth, [Joseph] Heller, [Leonard] Michaels, or [Stanley] Elkin."

The plot of Blood Libels goes like this: Jacob Silkstone is a sexually obsessed Jewish boy who, on his bar-mitzvah day, discovers his rabbi sexually assaulting his family's beautiful German au-pair, Helga, in a public bathroom stall. Later, as a writer, Jacob enrages his local religionists by publishing a thinly veiled account of the episode in Rabbi Nathan's Folly. The book sells a few copies and is forgotten. Some years later, as a new wave of anti-Semitism sweeps Britain, Jew-hating politician Bruno Gascoyne goes on the BBC to claim that Jews are again sacrificing British children, as Chaucer had claimed they did in his day. The aged Rabbi Nathan is there to rebut him.

> GASCOYNE [to Nathan]: You are a hypocrite, sir, as well as being a windbag.
> INTERVIEWER: Please!
> GASCOYNE: Can Rabbi Nathan deny that on 21 May 1961 in the ladies lavatory of the Café Royal he forced the act of fellatio upon the unwilling person of Helga M, then the German au pair of the Jewish Voice's present literary editor?
> RABBI NATHAN: This is scandalous!
> GASCOYNE: It is all here.
> And he raises aloft in triumph a copy of that rare book, Rabbi Nathan's Folly.

The major themes of Blood Libels appear to be retribution and Jewish paranoia. In Silkstone's vision, a wave of anti-Semitism does not arise through some grand economic or historical "determinism"; it follows from the specific deeds of specific people (a point the Boeskys and other Jewish "insiders" would do well to ponder).

Sinclair's book contains some sort of weird sex on nearly every other page. That and other animal functions seem to be all that Sinclair's soulless Jewish characters ever think about.

Clive Sinclair

David Remnick, reviewing Blood Libels in Book World (July 12, 1986), says that Sinclair "brings to life, in a very few pages, the astonishing character of Jacob Silkstone." If this narrow obsessiveness -- which puts Roth's Alexander Portnoy in a class with Goethe -- constitutes "life" and "character," perhaps that says something about Remnick, who also salutes "the richness of Sinclair's story" and calls it a "raw, stunning piece of work."

The most instructive part of Blood Libels is the incredible alienation of its characters. Living their lives on English soil -- on English pavement at any rate -- they might as well be deep in the Negev for all the awareness they show of the land, the traditions and the native populations. These British Jews relate better to such foreign characters as Uzi, the cultural attaché at the Israeli Embassy -- a man with "the looks of Peter Lorre and the energy of a chimpanzee," whose idea of fun is stripping a female guest almost naked in front of a hundred people at a literary reception. (Don't worry. His victim loves him for doing it.)

The Iraqi Information Ministry has launched a campaign to improve the wretched image of ancient Babylon, which it blames on the Jews. Perhaps the lesson of Blood Libels is that London can become a second Babylon if one introduces enough lechers and whores.

ENGLISH, DEAD OR ALIVE?

DEMANDING THAT FOREIGNERS speak our language gives them an advantage in the racial confrontation which has already started in this country and which is certain to get hotter with time. Since we'll need all the strength we can muster to defend ourselves against the onslaught, let's not force one of our most effective weapons of defense on the enemy.

Rather than worry about aliens speaking an alien language in our midst, we might turn our attention to improving our own speech and heed the advice of that polymathic, white-bearded advocate of a purer English, William Barnes, a musician, poet, archaeologist and mathematician, who knew 85 languages, but preferred his own and spent a great deal of his life (1801-86) trying to distill it. Here is a snippet of his linguistic philosophy.

> Good English words might be easily formed for the awkward and irregular ones frequently borrowed . . . to stop the contemptible system of Gallicising, Latinizing and Helenizing our language, now so extremely common that it is likely to make it in a few years a medley understood critically only by a few professors of the dead and living languages.

Some of Barnes' suggestions for a more authentic vocabulary: folkdom (democracy), forenote (preface), heedsome (attentive), law-craft (jurisprudence), moonmad (lunatic), soaksome (bibulous), sunprint (photograph), taste-craft (aesthetics), link-word (conjunction), waterload (aquaduct), honey-sweet (mellifluous), word-hoard (vocabulary), foresunder (divorce), earth-tillage (agriculture), fairhood (beauty), forewit (caution), great-mindedness (magnanimity), house-breach (burglary), inwit (conscience), wondertoken (miracle).

Barnes, a country parson, couldn't stand the way his fellow clergymen were loading their sermons with words that could have been recognized by Plato, Virgil or Racine.

> What we want from the pulpit is a spare, homely, strong, Saxon-English of English stems, such as would be understood by common English minds and touch English hearts . . . . We should not reach the English mind more readily by turning "He scattered his foes" into "He dissipated his inimical forces" . . . . Latin- and Greek-mingled speech of the pulpit is often one ground on which the poor leave their church, where the preaching is, as they call it, too high for them.

As a glance at any modern dictionary proves, Barnes' efforts to purify English have not been too successful. Today in America some folks who care nothing about the purification of the language are trying to legalize it.

U.S. English, the organization that is working to establish English as the official language of the United States, has a Japanese American, the semanticist and ex-senator from California, S.I. Hayakawa, as its honorary chairman. It is headed by one WASP, John Tanton, and two Jews, Executive Director Gerda Bikales, a Holocaust survivor whose first language was Yiddish, and Founding Director Stanley Diamond. These people, seemingly insouciant about the quality of English or returning it to its linguistic roots, are more interested in forcing it down the vocal cords of foreigners, mainly Hispanics. U.S. English, Bikales claims, has 205,000 members, an annual budget of $3 million, and a staff of 14.

If everyone in the country speaks the same language, we will all be closer to equality, cultural conformity and racial indistinctiveness. This is a prime reason why many minority intellectuals wish to "legalize" English. Well-intentioned WASPs also support the campaign in the belief that formally installing English as the nation's official language will honor their Anglo-Saxon heritage.

Instauration takes a contrary view. We believe langauge should go hand in hand with race, which was how things stood when humans first started speaking and writing. We would like to see only people of Northern European descent speak Northern European languages. In the case of Americans of Northern European descent, since they are racially similar, since they all originally spoke a Teutonic language (English, German, Dutch) and since they have easily assimilated into the nuclear WASP culture, no racial or cultural betrayal was involved in their choice of speech. In any case, language should be as much a sign of race as mental or physical traits.

The campaign to recognize English as the nation's official language -- as if it weren't -- won a victory when a large majority of California voters approved Proposition 63, which ordered state officials to "take all steps necessary to ensure that the role of English as the common language of the state of California is preserved and enhanced." The next step for the U.S. English group is to get similar referenda passed in other states and eventually to enshrine the project in the Constitution. An amendment, which would be the 27th, has been introduced in several recent Congresses.

> Section 1. The English language shall be the official language of the United States.
> Section 2. Neither the United States nor any State shall require, by law, ordinance, regulation, order, decree, program, or policy, the use in the United States of any language other than English.
> Section 3. This article shall not prohibit any law, ordinance, regulation, order, decree, program, or policy requiring educational instruction in a language other than English for the purpose of making students who use a language other than English proficient in English. [Whoever wrote this needs a course in remedial English.]
> Section 4. The Congress and the States may enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

The effect of such an amendment, if it managed to get through two-thirds of Congress and three-quarters of the state legislatures, would be to end the bilingual ballots that are now required in 375 jurisdictions in 21 states. It would also abrogate the permissiveness of the 39 states that allow drivers' license tests to be taken in a foreign language.

The group that is pushing the amendment is not U.S. English, though it probably supports it, but something called English First, whose letterhead is decorated with the names of conservative state legislators.

It is Instauration's belief that language can best be established and preserved in the heart and mind, not in a law book. If people wish to cling to their native language, as most Northern Europeans do, a referendum or an amendment is not necessary to help preserve their linguistic loyalty.

More important, Instauration is against racial camouflage. We believe that every race and population group should have the opportunity to develop its own culture without interference from outsiders. (There is no meddling like telling people they must speak a foreign language.) An Hispanic who speaks English because it is the "official language" is still an Hispanic, not because of the words that come out of his mouth or pen, but because he is a Spanish-Indian mestizo. Speaking English like Daniel Webster or writing it like Edward Gibbon will not change the color of his skin or the tilt of his mindset.

Isn't it safer for our culture and our survival to have Hispanics speaking Spanish rather than English? Isn't it better to have an identifiable enemy, rather than one who, because he can make similar noises, will have less difficulty passing for one of us? If we need a law to "officialize" our language, we may be in the process of losing it.

A few months ago, PBS ran a very interesting and watchable program entitled "The Story of English." The problem was that the producers and writers had it all wrong. The spread of English in the modern world, its status as the "most spoken" language, was hailed as a linguistic triumph.

Not at all. The popularity of English, as it becomes the world lingua franca, is a sign of decline, not triumph. Just listen to and read what non-Northern Europeans are doing to its grammar, accent and vocabulary. English would be a better language today if it had remained the unique possession of the people who first spoke it and of the Northern Europeans in the New World who took to it so readily and instinctively.

It is our prediction that the more nonwhite, non-Northern European English speakers there are, the sooner the world's richest language, the language of Shakespeare, Keats and T.S. Eliot, will die.

EXTANT WITCHES

A NIGERIAN STUDENT in my class last year told me that in his native country he had seen a woman stoned to death on the accusation that she was a witch. I responded that that must have been a terrible thing. No, he said, the witchdoctor had determined that she was a witch, so that was the only possible outcome. I knew that people in various parts of black Africa believed in and feared witches, but this being the 1980s, I thought such witches were not tormented or put to death; rather that witchcraft was dealt with benignly. Now, since I had no cause to doubt the student, I had reason to reconsider.

However, I was still interested in what anthropologists in the field in Africa experienced, assuming they could be counted on to tell the truth, not to cover things over with pro-African apologetics. Several days ago I came upon an article, printed in a recent anthropology textbook, Magic, Witchcraft and Religion, edited by Aurther Lehmann, in which Daniel Offiong describes an African witch hunt.

In Offiong's account, a self-proclaimed witch-purger named Edem Edet Akpan rallies Ibibio tribespeople to assemble their own members in a large courtyard. After Edem had pointed out the witches,

> The suspects had their hands tied together and red pepper . . . sprayed all over their bodies and into their eyes, ears and noses. In addition, large quantities of black ants were poured into the suspected witches. Under agonizing pain, they were asked to confess all those they had killed, those whose money and other property they had bewitched, their rank in the witch society, and so on . . . .

One might expect a modern goverment to suppress such madness. That is what Nigeria tried to do. What happened, though, may come to outsiders as a surprise.

> The Police Commissioner moved to suppress the witch purge, issuing orders to the police to shoot on sight and arresting Edem. Yet, despite these measures, the purge continued into 1979, for the crusade was extremely popular and villagers defiantly fought against the police . . . . In most cases the police became ordinary spectators, an indication of their approval of the exercise. Even the arrested leader publicly stated that he was given excellent treatment and that he was allowed to make anti-witchcraft charms for people, including the police, while still in detention. The later trial and acquittal (on technical grounds) of Edem merely confirmed to the people the righteousness of their course of action. Traders, farmers, barren and pregnant women, and even taxi drivers were jubilant because they believed that the annihilation of witches and witchcraft in the area would usher in a new era in which people would go about their daily activity without worrying about being bewitched. These men and women stormed houses or compounds of "identified" witches to search for the witchcraft substance that made witches so powerful; in some cases they set such houses or compounds ablaze. Many suspected or identified witches were tortured to death, some were beaten to death, still others mysteriously disappeared from their homes and have never been seen again (presumably murdered); and at least three committed suicide rather than stand the shame and torture, and many others were maimed for life.

STRUGGLE FOR EXISTENCE

Throughout its life, an individual organism must struggle against many forces if it is to survive and reproduce. It must contend with predators and parasites, while competing with other organisms for the same nesting sites and food. It must deal with hazards in its physical environment, such as storms, droughts, and drastic temperature changes. All of these factors make living a continual struggle for existence.

A struggle for existence inevitably follows from the high rate at which all organic beings tend to increase. . . . As more individuals are produced than can possibly survive, there must in every case be a struggle for existence, either one individual with another of the same species, or with the individuals of distinct species, or with the physical conditions of life.

25 REASONS WHY JOHN DEMJANJUK CAN'T BE TREBLINKA'S "IVAN THE TERRIBLE"

TWELVE YEARS AFTER his denunciation as a "war criminal" in a Soviet-controlled English-language newspaper, six years after the U.S. Justice Department first took him to court, three years after his deportation hearing, and one year after he was brought to Israel, John Demjanjuk, formerly of suburban Cleveland, saw his trial in Jerusalem begin on February 16. The media's focus, as in all Holocaust legal proceedings, was on the theatrical performances of certain Jewish "witnesses" and on "what it all meant" for Israel, the future of Judaism and Jewish self-esteem. The critical faculties of the assembled reporters were in rather short supply, as contradiction was piled on contradiction in the matter of Treblinka and its sadistic guard, "Ivan the Terrible."

Even with regard to the fundamental question of how 750,000 or more Jews had allegedly died in the camp, consensus remained elusive. At the Nuremberg Trial of Major War Criminals, the Treblinka killings were ascribed to mass steamings or (alternately) "electric current on a large scale." (See Document PS-3311, Vol. 32, International Military Tribunal "blue series.") In the 1946 edition of The Black Book of Polish Jewry, "vacuum chambers" were listed as one method of mass murder at Treblinka. The first witness at Demjanjuk's Jerusalem trial, Pinchas Epstein, spoke of a "push-button" gas chamber. The second witness, Elijahu (Elias) Rosenberg, vaguely described exhaust from the turbine of an electric generator.

For decades, the standard explanation of the gassings at Treblinka, as at Belzec and Sobibor nearby, was through carbon monoxide poisoning generated by Diesel engine exhaust. Alas, Friedrich P. Berg, an engineer and technical writer educated at Columbia University, has conclusively demonstrated that Diesel exhaust is the unlikeliest substance imaginable for fatally "gassing" anyone (The Journal of Historical Review, Spring 1984). Yet the Diesel tales are firmly embedded in Holocaustiana, and reaching consensus on a replacement method will be no easy matter. Not that anyone in Jerusalem is paying particular attention to such "merely technical" considerations. The latest outbursts of "survivor" hysteria have seen to that.

Demjanjuk's first accuser, Pinchas Epstein, recounted how Ivan "would beat us mercilessly, with a pipe or a sword or a bayonet. He would crack skulls and cut off ears and commit the most indescribable atrocities on corpses. Eyes were gouged, pregnant women were stabbed in the abdomen." Then Ivan really got nasty!

There could be no doubt in Epstein's mind that the 66-year-old Demjanjuk was the same man as 21-year-old Ivan: he dreamed of the guard every night and therefore had a remarkable awareness of Ivan's appearance. Epstein described Demjanjuk alighting from an aircraft upon his arrival from America: "When he got off the plane, I saw the way he walked. I saw his movements the way I remember them from Treblinka." (Lucky man to have aged so little!) Many of the courtroom's 500 spectators rose and applauded when Epstein pointed Demjanjuk out as the guilty party. They wept when Epstein wept, snarled when he snarled, grimaced when he grimaced.

The second accuser, Elijahu Rosenberg, recalled how children dying in the gas chambers cried out, "Mommy, Daddy, Oh, Israel!" At one point his wife, Oga, conveniently fainted and had to be carried out of the courtroom. And so things continued, week after week, and may continue for many weeks more.

Demjanjuk's attorney, Mark J. O'Connor of Buffalo, made a fateful decision not to challenge the standard mythology of "Ivan" and Treblinka, which neutral observers have shot full of holes. Instead, all the fire has been directed toward proving that his client could not possibly be "Ivan." What follows is a list of 25 reasons why the case against Demjanjuk would have been laughed out of court years ago if it were not for its special nature:

1. Except for recollections of a few emotional old Jews, the only evidence against Demjanjuk is an alleged ID card from the Nazi SS training camp at Trawniki, Poland, supplied by the Soviet government to the U.S. Justice Department while the latter was developing its case. One problem with the card is that the fully grown young man depicted on it is stated to be five feet, nine inches tall, whereas John Demjanjuk stands 6'1".

2. Another problem with the Trawniki ID card is its manifold errors of spelling and word usage -- most unusual in light of the National Socialists' mania for record-keeping. In one place, an umlaut is missing where it is essential. In four other places, the German letter s-sharp (ß) is spelled with the Latin letters, ss, which was almost unheard-of in Germany before about 1960. In 1942 -- the date of the card -- the ß was still almost universally used for s-sharp. Professor Z. Michael Szaz, a fluent German speaker, writing in the Chicago Tribune on September 14, 1985, likened the misspelling to that of an American repeatedly writing "kat" for a feline. "Apparently," he concluded, "whoever had forged the document (certainly not a born German) was not aware of the spelling change."

3. The ID card contains other oddities, such as no date of issue, no place of issue, no officer's signature, no indication of rank and no provision of a weapon (which would normally have been included with the list of "equipment received").

4. Though this ID card was allegedly captured, with other records, by the advancing Red Army, it is one of a kind. No other card even remotely like it has appeared in any WWII archives. On the other hand, many authentic ID cards of the type used in German camps are available on file.

5. Heinrich Schaefer was the paymaster at Trawniki camp. In a 1983 affidavit obtained by Demjanjuk's defense, he said of the ID card, "This document cannot have been issued at Trawniki." Rudolf Reiss of Hamburg was also an administrator at Trawniki. At Demjanjuk's deportation hearing in Cleveland, he also declared the ID card a fake. For his troubles, he was subjected to ethnic slurs and insults by a Justice Department agent named Mike Wolf.

6. The Soviets originally charged that Demjanjuk was a Ukrainian "traitor to the USSR" and had served as a guard at the Sobibor camp in Poland -- not at Treblinka, some 100 miles distant. To this day the Soviets have not suggested that he was ever at Treblinka. It was only the team of Israeli "witnesses" who, to everyone's initial surprise, identified Demjanjuk as a Treblinka guard. But if that was the case, how could one explain the stamp on the back of the ID card, which ordered the arrest of the bearer should he be found anywhere but Sobibor? As Gitta Sereny wrote in the London Times (Feb. 14): "The Americans decided to ignore this deficiency; they felt that the testimony of the [Israeli] witnesses made anything else irrelevant."

7. The ID card took some 30 years to materialize, conveniently doing so just as the American OSI (the Nazi-hunting "Office of Special Investigations") was applying heat to the case.

8. The ID card has been altered and tampered with in a variety of ways. Parts of the photo are blocked out. The seals on the card are misaligned, as though separate documents have been placed together. Yet U.S. Judge Frank J. Battisti persisted in ruling the card "authentic" after becoming aware of the alterations.

9. Mark O'Connor confronted the number two man at the Soviet Embassy in Washington with questions about the ID card and obtained a startling admission. First Secretary and Consul Valeriy G. Kubanov admitted that the ID card had been doctored by Moscow before it was sent to the OSI. Kubanov's statement was reported in the Jerusalem Post (April 15, 1986).

10. The ID card has never been forensically tested for age and authenticity, allegedly because of promises made to the Soviets to "preserve its integrity." Even the removal of minuscule samples of paper and ink could confirm the defense's position. At last report, Israeli forensic experts were supposedly planning some sort of test.

11. Molod Ukrainy (Ukrainian Youth) contained an article (April 30, 1986) which obliterated any lingering credibility of the Trawniki ID card. It came to the defense's attention only because one Taras Hunczak, a professor of history at Rutgers University, spotted it as recently as last December. The Ukrainian article continued to place Demjanjuk at Sobibor rather than Treblinka, and, more importantly, displayed a different version of the ID card! The photo on the card is of a different man, and it appears on the opposite side of the card. Yet the two cards are supposed to be one and the same! As one wag put it, "Either someone at the Kremlin is playing an April Fool's joke on the West, or else the Soviet regime is even more idiotic than we thought."

12. Two of America's leading handwriting and document analysts were permitted by the OSI to examine the ID card. After extensive independent testing, Edna W. Robertson and Fabian Tasson agreed that the card was a total fraud. They testified to that effect before Immigration Judge Adolph Angellili, who nonetheless rubber-stamped Judge Battisti's denaturalization verdict, and ordered Demjanjuk deported.

Thus, a dozen sound reasons can be found for rejecting the authenticity of the one and only piece of physical evidence ever brought against Demjanjuk. Many more reasons can be adduced to spurn the only non-physical evidence -- namely, the testimony of a small, closely-knit circle of "eyewitnesses."

13. The first legal proceeding against Demjanjuk was the deprivation of his U.S. citizenship in 1981. At that time, the two star witnesses against him were a pair of West Germans, Heinrich Schaefer and Otto Horn. Schaefer, as we have seen (#5 above), was an administrator at the Trawniki SS training camp. Horn was the SS official in charge of body disposal at Treblinka. Later, during Demjanjuk's deportation hearing, both of these men voluntarily recanted their previous testimony, saying they had testified under duress. Schaefer now said the ID card could never have been issued at Trawniki, while Horn admitted he could not truthfully identify a picture of Demjanjuk. Unfortunately, none of this was heard in court. An OSI agent, sent to the German homes of Schaefer and Horn, learned of their change of heart and informed the court, by deposition, that the two men would "no longer be testifying."

14. After some hard searching, Demjanjuk's defense team located three elderly former inmates of Treblinka living in Poland who felt they could positively identify "the real Ivan" as someone other than Demjanjuk. Mark O'Connor has tried repeatedly to go to Poland to depose the three, without success. Meanwhile, he obtained U.S. visas for them from the American consul in Warsaw, one James Halmo, so that they might testify in Cleveland. Three days later, following instructions from Washington, Halmo canceled the visas. O'Connor then sent his colleague, Jerome Brentar, to Poland to depose the three. But when Brentar went to the U.S. Embassy in Warsaw to have the depositions legally certified, Halmo refused to do so, thereby gravely undermining their legal standing in Cleveland. At the same time, the Polish government had the trio's passports seized.

15. On December 7, 1984, Mark O'Connor filed a 600-page legal brief outlining the history of fraud, misrepresentation, errors and neglect perpetrated by both the OSI and the U.S. District Court. Among the many documents contained in this disturbing report is the testimony of Treblinka inmate Eugenia Samuel. Back in 1960, she testified in a Soviet "trial" of Treblinka guards held in the USSR. Confronted more recently with OSI's evidence, she stated, "I don't see any similarity between [her memory of "Ivan"] and the photo attached" to Demjanjuk's alleged ID card. When the OSI learned of Samuel's opinion, her visa was revoked, which stopped her from testifying in Demjanjuk's behalf in the U.S.

16. Working with the Israeli federal police, the OSI located a small group of Israelis -- former inmates of Treblinka -- who collectively insisted that the man shown on the KGB's ID card was in fact "Ivan the Terrible" of Treblinka, and not the Sobibor guard whom the Soviets had insisted (and still insist) he was. Later, these Israelis were asked to examine a recent newspaper photo of John Demjanjuk to "prove" that he was the same "Ivan." Their collective "yes," together with U.S. Judge Battisti's denaturalization opinion, constituted the sole grounds for Israel's formal request for extradition! Yet this same group of "witnesses" had been utterly discredited back in 1978 by a ruling of Florida's U.S. District Court Judge Norman Roettger, during the deportation trial of Feodor Federenko. They were suspected of having coordinated their answers in advance. Indeed, Judge Roettger's opinion suggested that outright "coaching" was likely involved. (Roettger's courageous verdict, reached despite tremendous countervailing pressures, was later overturned, and Federenko was deported to the Soviet Union, where he may since have been executed.) Judge Roettger singled out Josef Czarny as "clearly the least credible of the survivor witnesses," observing that he "would become more theatrical when he was aware the court was watching him closely." This same Czarny testified against Demjanjuk in Jerusalem.

In a similar deportation case, 11 Israeli witnesses together insisted with absolute certainty that Frank Walus of Chicago was really the "Butcher of Kielce," Poland, though they were later proven wrong on all counts. Walus had never been near Kielce. Needless to say, no indictments for perjury were sought.

17. Related to the Israeli coaching factor is the senility factor. This emerged most starkly when Gustav Boraks testified against Demjanjuk in Jerusalem. O'Connor asked Boraks how he had traveled to America to give earlier testimony. "By train," came the feeble reply, which left the audience gasping.

O'Connor hammered away at the mass of confused details concerning the witnesses' Treblinka days, stating, "The sole issue in this case is mind and memory." A Hebrew University psychology professor, Sol Kugelmass, said O'Connor had nothing to worry about. Since the Holocaust survivors' chief "goal in life was to record . . . and remember."

18. Many Treblinka inmates have said in the past that "Ivan" died during a prison uprising on August 2, 1943. The most outspoken among them is Joaquin Garcia Ribes, who, surfacing in Spain recently, waxed theatrical himself:

> I need to let this be known to ease my conscience. "Ivan the Terrible" died on August 3, 1943, and if they shoot Demjanjuk now, I will kill myself because I couldn't forgive myself for not having spoken up in time . . . . There is one unmistakable fact. Five authors who have written about the Treblinka horrors, with different stories . . . all agree about his death. He was killed by a man named Adolfo, whom "Ivan the Terrible" choked to death, but the victim had a chance to grab a knife that Ivan had on his waist and stick it into his back. This is a fact described by everyone.

Among those who once described "Ivan's" death was the same Elijahu Rosenberg who testified against Demjanjuk in Jerusalem. On December 24, 1947, when his memory was presumably fresher, Rosenberg went to the Jewish Documentation Center in Vienna and, under oath, testified regarding "Ivan's" death in an eight-page deposition. Now, 40 years later, Rosenberg has concluded that this was all just "wishful thinking" on his and others' parts. Attorney Yoram Sheftel of Tel Aviv, Demjanjuk's appointed Israeli attorney, raised the logical question of whether the identification of Demjanjuk might not also be "wishful thinking." The Israeli chief judge, Dov Levin, a former member of the terrorist LEHI/Stern Gang, cut off Sheftel's question.

19. Kurt Franz, the imprisoned former leader of the guard unit at Treblinka, states that he never heard of an "Ivan the Terrible" among the 80 Ukrainian guards there. The "Ivan" he knew was a man of about 40, not in his early 20s.

20. Chaim Sztajer (or Sztier), a former Treblinka inmate living in Melbourne, Australia, swore under oath that a man now living in Chicago is the "Ivan" whom he can never forget -- the monster who "took my little girl out of my hands and threw her in [a gas chamber] over everyone else's head." Sztajer has written to the Israeli authorities, begging for a role in the Demjanjuk trial, but has not been asked to make an appearance.

21. Guard rosters and duty assignment lists were captured for both the Treblinka concentration camp and the Trawniki training camp. None of these lists make any mention of a man named Ivan (John) Demjanjuk, nor is there any record of a man fitting the descriptions of "Ivan the Terrible" given by the group of Israeli survivors. Fruitless searches for records of "Ivan" have been made in every war archive in Europe.

22. The only "expert witness" at Demjanjuk's Jerusalem trial has been Dr. Yitzhak Arad, head of the Holocaust museum at Yad Vashem. Arad admits that his own assertions are based entirely on "survivor" testimony, notably that of the late Jankel Wiernek, a disturbed carpenter who died in 1972, and who was, says Arad, the "only survivor to have actually seen the gas chambers" (a point which Epstein, Rosenberg and Czarny hasten to dispute). Wiernek's testimony is filled with insane -- often physically impossible -- allegations, many of them lifted almost directly from the discredited Nazi arch-"confessor" Kurt Gerstein.

23. Reversing its previous position, the Soviet government sent a diplomatic note to Demjanjuk's American deportation hearing, stating that it no longer had any charges pending against him.

24. Since at least 1981, the OSI's case against Demjanjuk has been widely regarded by European "Nazi hunters" as an absurd joke. Mark O'Connor asked Adalbert Ruckerl, then the director of West German's Justice Central, to come forward and expose to Americans the injustice of the Demjanjuk case. Ruckerl rebuked him for "suggesting that a West German should be the one to reform the U.S. justice system," said O'Connor.

25. Several East Bloc defectors have warned the U.S. that the forgery of World War II German files is now a major industry in several countries. The first inside report reached the CIA in the fall of 1969. Ladislav Bittman, the deputy director of disinformation in the Czech secret service, gave his U.S. interrogators an account of "Operation Neptune," where thousands of fake Nazi files were sealed and then dropped into Bohemia's Black Lake, there to be "accidentally" dredged up by TV reporters filming a documentary about the lake. Bittman's tale seemed far-fetched until 1975, when Colonel Ludwig Januschek of the East German secret service defected to the West and confirmed what Bittman had said. Then, in 1985, Vitaly Yurchenko, the Soviet spy who defected and then re-defected, described similar forgery operations.

On a related note, there is the case of the non-defecting and very courageous Soviet official who, in 1983, leaked information to an OSI contact that his government was funneling the American agency faked evidence and coached testimony, so as to discredit Soviet emigré groups in the West. The OSI has chosen to ignore this and other similar warnings.

The diminishing band of zealots which continues to justify the persecution of John Demjanjuk customarily falls back on the argument that he lied several times while giving his wartime history to authorities. There is the 1948 version, the 1951 version (only slightly different), the 1981 trial version (radically different) and the 1981 post-trial version (moderately different from the preceding).

Like Kurt Waldheim and many others, Demjanjuk is certainly guilty of a willfully inconsistent memory. But as even Holocaust hardliner Gitta Sereny readily admits, possibly 100,000 Eastern European refugees who lied about their pasts on American visa applications often did so at American instigation. No one wanted to see a repetition of the incident where 150,000 pro-Axis Russians were returned to Stalin and promptly executed. Demjanjuk faced the same fate. Once a conscript in the Red Army, he had been ordered to commit suicide if captured.

Accusations of petty perjury loomed large in the response made by former OSI director Allan A. Ryan Jr. to Pat Buchanan's spirited defense of Demjanjuk in an article last September. The 25 points laid out here figured hardly at all in Ryan's reply (though, admittedly, many were not raised by Buchanan).

The fact that Israel has proceeded with its trial of Demjanjuk, despite the overwhelming evidence of his innocence, suggests a rottenness which careful observers have detected in many other Holocaust cases as well. The American columnist Richard Cohen unwittingly offered the perfect illustration of this rot. After conceding that the Israeli trial has "elements of a show trial," he seemed to justify it on precisely that ground:

> Demjanjuk's culpability is hardly beside the point. But his larger historical function is to announce that the Holocaust was not just the work of Germans or Nazis and their hideous racial theories, but of ordinary people and their quite ordinary -- but just as hideous -- racial and religious prejudices.

Without waiting for even a "show trial" verdict, Cohen pronounced the man Demjanjuk "a symbol of cruelty and hatred."

Vermin Chic

Minority racism disguised as "anti-racism" is increasingly aimed at the youngest age groups. Steven Spielberg's first cartoon movie, An American Tail, is part of the trend. It's the saga of the furry Mousekewitz family, which flees the pogrom-minded cats of Russia only to encounter American nativist cats who wear WASPy varsity sweaters. Led by Gussie Mansheimer, a lisping socialite rodent, and adorable little Fievel Mousekewitz, the mice rally to assert their "right" to take over the entire country without any natural controls on their numbers or influence.

Critic Gene Shalit wasted no time proclaiming that "Fievel takes his place in the animated pantheon with Jiminy Cricket, Dumbo and the Seven Dwarfs." Be that as it may, the villains of An American Tail certainly rank with the wicked queen, Maleficent, in Walt Disney's Sleeping Beauty, as the supreme embodiment of evil in the annals of animation. This viewer naively expected another Tom 'n' Jerry-like rendering of ye olde cat-and-mouse conflict. Anything but! Spielberg's anti-Semitic cats are drooling demons from another world -- all except "Tiger," with the voice of Dom DeLuise, who is a "righteous cat" because he is terribly overweight, neurotic and vegetarian, and prefers mice to his fellow felines.

In an age of cinematic irreverence, An American Tail, both at beginning and end, faithfully treats one symbol as the Holy of Holies -- namely, the Statue of Liberty (with Emma Lazarus's odious ode to immigration). Though the movie shows the Mouskewitzes arriving in 1885, with the statue yet under construction, the words of "The New Colossus" are solemnly intoned in the background, despite the fact that the poem was attached to the statue's base only in 1903, with little fanfare for years to come. John Greenleaf Whittier wrote the now forgotten poem which was read at the statue's 1886 unveiling.

Steven Spielberg isn't the only Chosener to cash in on the idea of goyish cats chasing Hebraic mice. There's also Art Spiegelman, whose novel in comic book format, Maus, has been widely praised by the hipper literati. Here, the Jews are all mice, the Germans are cats, the Poles pigs and the Gentile Americans dogs. Before punning around with the Mauschwitz theme, Spiegelman was best known as the author of Play With Your Cells and Become Your Own Food, an LSD-promoting tract translated into several languages, and Prisoner on the Hell Planet, which describes life in a hysterical Jewish family.

Give Spiegelman credit for one thing: he does his own artwork. In the Spielberg movie, the big credits read Kirschner, Freudenberg, Geiss, Bluth and Goldman, while the little credits at the end -- for the finely tuned technical work -- are almost solidly Gentile.

Maus first appeared serially in the "socially critical" comic book, RAW, which is published by Spiegelman's wife, Françoise Mouly, a French convert to Judaism. "RAW's readers," writes Russell Miller of In These Times, "are all over the map, if your map doesn't go beyond Manhattan, San Francisco and the Left Bank." "Our audience," says Mouly, "has been 10,000 people in downtown New York, Paris and Tokyo -- hip people who know all the artists."

Now, thanks to rave reviews in such supposedly "square" sheets as Newsweek, Maus may be purchased at almost any bookstore in America.

Jews were not pleased when, in a 1930s movie, the German filmmaker Hippler cut directly from a shot of crowded ghetto Jews to one of swarming rodents. But the mouse = Jew equation is acceptable when handled "sensitively" by tribalists like Franz Kafka, in his short story, "Josephine the Singer, or the Mouse Folk." So complete is Spiegelman's identification that he tells reporters, "We're expecting a little mouse" in the spring.

Above All, Watch Your Words

All readers of Instauration should re-read carefully "Forget the Enemy, Watch Your 'Friend' " in the October 1986 issue.

It has fallen to my lot to serve as counsel for Majority activists prosecuted by the government on trumped-up criminal charges or sued civilly by attorneys representing minority/leftist "public service" groups.

The first thing activists should understand is that words intended as "humorous" remarks do not sound at all humorous when read out in a solemn court of law. Remarks hinting of violence against minority group members are admissible in most states in criminal actions to prove intent, frame of mind, motive and pattern of conduct by the defendant. Most states now have on their books criminal statutes making it a crime to utter "terroristic threats."

Properly interpreted, such statutes would only survive constitutional challenge if theoretical or hypothetical language concerning the necessity of violence at some future date is protected by not being deemed a "terroristic threat." This protection has worked well for the extreme left. There is a long list of causes in which Communists and other radical leftists have been protected by federal and state courts for hypothetical advocacy of violent revolution.

However, even in the event that the increasingly repressive courts of this country grant people of the Instaurationist persuasion the same protection which they have granted to Communist activists (and such even-handed protection is extremely unlikely), the danger still exists of minority group members taking out warrants for the arrest of Majority activists for "terroristic threats."

All the "aggrieved" minority group member has to do is go before a magistrate and swear that he was threatened in some way or other by a white racialist and that this made him feel scared. If he has a friend who "corroborates" the alleged remarks, the warrant will be issued and the person who allegedly made the threats will be arrested, indicted and placed on trial. In the state of Georgia, the penalty for uttering a "terroristic threat" is five years imprisonment.

Once a person is indicted and placed on trial under the terroristic threat statute, all manner of statements unrelated to the so-called threat can come before the jury to show motive, pattern of conduct and frame of mind.

Recently I defended a member of the Ku Klux Klan in Gainesville (GA), an extremely repressive town run by a tight clique of self-serving political "leaders." Gainesville has one of the most unfair, bigoted and irresponsible newspapers in the country (part of the Gannett chain) when it comes to free speech for Majority members defending themselves against minority racists.

My client, an employee of AT&T, was wholly devoid of any serious criminal record. He and seven other Klan members were picketing against the sale and traffic in illegal drugs on a predominantly black street, when they were greeted with a storm of abuse by the black residents who, among other things, shouted death, rape and arson threats and threw bottles at them across rooftops. If the bottles had struck any of the demonstrators, they could have caused serious injury, even death.

The police arrested no one for the threats against the Klan demonstrators. They made no arrests and no attempt to identify the blacks who threw the bottles.

At one point about 150 black residents charged across the street at the Klan demonstrators who had moved and separated themselves from the blacks at the request of the police. Members of the black mob stated under oath at the trial that their purpose was to run the Klansmen out -- that is, to drive them off public property, thereby silencing them and violating their civil rights. No arrests and no investigation have ever been undertaken for the purpose of prosecuting any of these persons for their conspiracy to violate the civil rights of the peaceful white demonstrators.

When the blacks charged, the police immediately intervened between the two crowds. One member of the black mob, Jalasker Lyles, the operator of a game room, swore out a warrant for the arrest of my client claiming that the Klansman had said to him, "Get back or I'll shoot."

During the trial, the District Attorney attempted repeatedly to get before the jury evidence that one member of the demonstrating group had been a member of the White Patriot Party, which was under an all-out government attack in North Carolina. Agents for the Georgia Bureau of Investigation testified as "experts" that they knew that this group was a violent and dangerous racist terrorist band bent on overthrowing the government. Fortunately, this testimony was too outlandish and outrageous even for the judge, who excluded it from the jury.

However, the judge did allow the jury to hear tapes of conversations and speeches by the defendant, which were alleged to show his terroristic motive, pattern and state of mind. One was a taped telephone call opposing reverse discrimination and ending with the statement, "Let's fight for white rights." As defense counsel, I objected to the tape on the grounds that it was irrelevant. The judge overruled, saying that the word "fight" could be construed to show the intent, pattern of conduct and mindset of the defendant. Suffice it to say that the jury convicted my client based on the flimsy evidence of the badly impeached state witnesses.

While a measure of freedom of speech still remains for all Americans, Majority activists would be well advised to heed the advice given in the article, "Forget the Enemy, Watch Your 'Friend,' " and avoid any and all statements which could be construed even remotely as advocating or promoting violence directed against minority groups. Such statements do not win anyone over to our cause. They serve to alienate us not only from the minority groups, who are unreachable, but also from our friends. They enable our enemies, who are strangers to any notion of chivalry, truthfulness or fair play, to move effectively to quash our civil rights and to set up the minority-dominated slave state which is at the top of their political agenda.

The Real Cause of the Cocoanut Grove Holocaust

It took just seven minutes to destroy 491 lives in Boston's famous Cocoanut Grove nightclub on Thanksgiving weekend, 1942. More than 2,300 people were crowded into the club -- soldiers and sailors on leave, college students, couples on dates, young marrieds. The country was at war, and everyone wanted to forget about death and destruction. But death and destruction were everywhere in the most horrible fire in American history.

The media first blamed Stanley Tomaszewski, a bar boy who had apparently lit the match that started the fire. Also singled out were James Mooney, Boston building commissioner, and Theodore Eldracher, a fire prevention inspector. Some papers hinted it might have been "Nazi sabotage." Early that year eight German saboteurs had been arrested after landing on a Long Island beach from a U-boat. Six had been electrocuted.

Anyone who delves into Cocoanut Grove history will find that in 1916 a certain Jacob Berman bought an abandoned building and hired an architect, Reuben Bodenhorn, to remodel it. In May 1918, Berman was arrested in a stock swindle case in Los Angeles and sentenced to seven years in the federal prison on McNeil Island (WA). George Alpert, a Boston attorney, took over the club.

When the stock market crashed in 1929, the Cocoanut Grove began to lose business, so much business that Alpert sold his club to a Boston mobster named Charles "King" Solomon, who was able to restore some of the glitter to the Grove, which soon became Boston's #1 "hot spot."

On January 24, 1933, after the club had closed for the night, King Solomon, along with some friends, went to the Cotton Club in Boston's south end. While in the men's restroom, he was shot dead by unknown gunmen, whereupon Solomon's attorney, Barnet "Barney" Welansky, assumed control of the Grove.

On the night of the fire, the entire inside of the nightclub was decorated with fake palm trees. The ceiling was covered with satin. Nets were hanging from all the walls. All of this material, along with the upholstery, was extremely flammable. But no one seemed to care, although just four months earlier an artificial palm tree at the Rio Casino Club, also owned by Welansky, caught fire. The blaze was extinguished quickly and no one was hurt. But it was an omen of things to come!

The contractor who had done the new interior for the Cocoanut Grove was Samuel Rudnick. The job was completed just two weeks before the fatal fire. Rudnick in turn hired Raymond Baer, an unlicensed electrician, to install the wiring.

Over 1,300 patrons who were jammed into the club were expected to escape the inferno through only two marked exits. One was a revolving door at the main entrance. The other was an inward opening door, which created a natural barrier. There were other doors, but they were concealed from view, as were a few windows. The exits were hidden to prevent anyone from "sneaking in without paying." The quote was Barney Welansky's.

So the patrons of the Grove were not only in a tinder box, they were also in a fire trap. Welansky had saved some money on the cheap, ready-to-burn ornaments and decorations. The unlicensed workmen worked for less. Exits were covered and blocked so no one could get in without paying. All in all, a great job of skimping.

Despite the casualties, the personal tragedies and the suffering, Barney Welansky was still "operating." Twelve hours after the fire he sent his nephew, Daniel Weiss, back to the gutted, blackened ruins to "see if he could salvage anything" that might help "Uncle Barney recover from this setback." He found several thousand dollars in the cash drawers, which had been untouched by the fire. Much of that money had been spent by human beings who were now dead.

On December 31, 1942, a Suffolk County grand jury returned indictments against Barnet "Barney" Welansky for manslaughter and willful conspiracy to violate building laws.

Jacob Goldfine (acting manager the night of the fire) for manslaughter.

Reuben Bodenhorn, conspiracy to violate building laws.

Samuel Rudnick, conspiracy to violate building laws.

Several city officials were also indicted on lesser charges.

On April 15, 1943, after a lengthy trial, Barney Welansky was found guilty on all counts and sentenced to twelve years in the state prison. All the rest were acquitted, although some of the city officials lost their jobs.

It was not an accident, carelessness or fate that claimed 491 lives on that autumn evening four decades ago. It was the inordinate love of the almighty dollar, which seems stronger in some races than in others. The real match that lit the fire was greed.

Jailhouse Jottings (II)

Have you ever wondered why the Aryan movement is so strong in American prisons? I have been transferred to state and federal prisons all over the country during the past 12 years. Everywhere Aryan numbers are growing. My own story may help explain why.

I am in for a minimum of 44 years for robbing jewelry stores and restaurants, though I never injured anyone, and I never robbed an individual. On the same day I was sentenced, two other men were sentenced. The three of us sat in the courtroom in chains. The other two went before the judge for sentencing before me. I did not have a trial, nor was I offered a plea bargain. My pregnant wife was being held in prison on robbery and weapons charges. I was told that if I would plead guilty to any charges the state gave me, she would be released. I took the offer and now waited for my sentence.

The Jewish lawyer of the first man, a Negro, explained to the judge that he was a borderline retard and was practicing Kung Fu when the five-year-old boy bothered him. Before he knew what he was doing, he had kicked the boy to death. The judge understood and sentenced him to five years. The second man was a Portuguese. He had kidnapped and molested a six-year-old girl, keeping her in his house for three days. He was caught in the act of attempting to kidnap another child. When the police searched his house, they found the other girl tied up. The judge understood that he was a sick man. He got one to two years and was released on parole in 10 months. Next it was my turn. Since I had never hurt anyone, I thought I might have a bit of luck in going before such an obviously lenient judge.

The judge called me a vicious Nazi -- I had once been a member of the National Socialist White People's Party and had allegedly made some anti-Semitic remarks to the Jewish proprietor of the jewelry store I robbed. He proceeded to sentence me to 68 years with no parole, which means a minimum of 44 years. Most white prisoners can tell a similar story.

A few years ago the entire Connecticut chapter of the Hell's Angels were arrested. I asked some of my friends who are in the club why they accepted 35-year sentences instead of going to trial. All had the same answer: "They had my ole lady on bogus charges; I had to cop out."

I was first sent to a prison in Connecticut. Of the 1,500 prisoners there, about 300 were white. Some 250 prisoners were locked up in protective custody (PC) isolation cellblocks. Of these, 200 were white. When a white first enters prison, he is asked if he wants a "PC" Once a prisoner "PCs," he is locked in a cell 24 hours a day. Policy requires the PC must name an enemy to get PC status. If he does, he is branded a rat for life. Most young whites are terrified to find themselves in a nearly all-black prison. Since my pride would not permit me to be a PC, I was placed in a cellblock of about 100 prisoners, eight of them white. Negroes roamed the yard and halls in bands of 10, 20 and 50. If more than three whites were together in a group, the guards broke them up. Negroes and other minority members were allowed to organize clubs and quasi-religious groups. We whites tried to do the same, and 50 of us found ourselves transferred from one end of the country to the other.

I have been stabbed by Negroes, and I have stabbed Negroes in order to ward off their homosexual advances. I spent the last year in an isolation cell for cutting the throat of a Negro who stabbed me.

We white prisoners know the minorities hate us. They do not act like Bill Cosby in here. We know what a future America will be like when the minorities are the majority. It will be like prison.

I am not in the least surprised so many members of The Order informed on their fellows. What impresses me about them is how out of place they are in prison. With one exception, these people had no prison experience. They are very naive and lack the street cunning of almost all prisoners, no matter what their race. Idealistic, middle-class American whites, they were never prepared to face up to the FBI, who told them what the colored hordes would do to them in prison. This broke half of them. The ones that didn't break had a lot of courage. But what could anyone expect from naive recruits from middle-class America? I don't condone what the squealers did, but I can easily understand how it happened.

Most of these people, even traitors, could have and should have served the movement in legal ways. Each person should contribute according to his ability. Anyone who wants to recruit people for activities against ZOG should go after and educate white convicts and ex-convicts. There are a lot of us. We are people who laugh at ZOG threats. We have been tried, tested and stood up to the worst ZOG can throw at us. It is easy to find out if a convict or an ex-con stood true or was an informer. We know all about each other's dirty laundry in these places. There are no secrets here.

Every great scientific truth goes through three stages. First, people say it conflicts with the Bible. Next, they say it has been discovered before. Lastly, they say they have always believed it.

California Girls

John Q. Yuppie of Silicon Valley (CA) makes $50,000 a year as a salesman for one of America's leading high-tech companies. Even with his commissions and bonuses, wife Jennifer still has to work as a programmer at the same company to keep them in their accustomed lifestyle. The mortgage payment on their home is $2,500 a month (they thank the gods that the rates have come down so they could refinance). Their combined income may let them put enough money away each month to make the $15,000 balloon payment due next year, the payments on the BMW and the van, plus Mr. and Mrs. Yuppie's wardrobe (silk blouses and Gucci shoes don't come cheap). Then there is the monthly bite for boarding the horse and the savings for the vacations in the Caribbean and Canada. Of course, with both John and Jennifer working, Alan (age 4, named for the star of *M*A*S*H*) and little Christa (named for the late astronaut) pass most of their weekday hours in a day care center.

The story is all too common in Silicon Valley. The children of Ellis Island immigrants and plantation slaves spent more time with their parents. If Alan and Christa are lucky, they are enrolled in the Shady Oaks Montessori School in Campbell, right on the way to work at a number of high-tech outfits. But maybe they aren't so lucky. The San Francisco Chronicle says that Shady Oaks' disciplinary methods owe more to the Black Hole of Calcutta than anything you'll find in a Montessori school brochure. One of the "teachers" at the school, Chandrika Parekh, age 35, has a thoroughly old-fashioned way of disciplining her charges. When they fail to behave, "She would pick them up by the wrists and dangle them over the neighbor's fence, where four large dogs would bark and snap at them." Ms. Parekh does not tolerate "bad" language and punishes offending kiddies by stuffing their mouths with hot peppers. Sithra Khan, owner of the center, insists that the Chronicle's reports are all lies and that Ms. Parekh is "very, very good with the children."

If children have to be entrusted to the likes of Ms. Parekh, are the big house, the BMW, the van, the clothes, the vacations and all the other elements of the upwardly mobile lifestyle really worth it?

Fifty miles up the road, in Jonestown-by-the-Bay, some young women have found a lower-tech, but more remunerative way of making a living. They work as "dancers" at the Mitchell Brothers O'Farrell theatre, which does a booming business, mostly for visiting Oriental businessmen who can't resist the sight of "round-eyed" women and give them tips for "sitting" with them. Since a girl can easily walk home with $300 in cash on a good night, it proves that St. Paul was dead wrong. The wages of sin are not death, but big bucks and no taxes, a combination that is pretty hard to beat. But apparently this windfall wasn't satisfactory to Bronwen Nicole Morgan, now suing the Mitchell brothers for $100 million, claiming "she was forced into sex acts at the theatre at the age of fourteen . . . forced to dance nude, masturbate customers and engage in sexual acts and prostitution." At a news conference, with 20 of their "dancers" present, the Mitchells "categorically denied all the charges." How were they to know that Morgan's ID was a fake? It was "one of the largest gatherings of Bay Area news media since the 1984 Democratic Convention," the Chronicle reported.

The wages of sin, however, are all too frequently eaten up by the girls' fondness for "controlled substances." Some are followers of the Bhagwan, who have "no hangups about sex" and just want to gather money for the cause. Unfortunately, all of them are doing more then Reagan to correct our trade imbalance with Japan.

Unponderable Quote, Ponderable Cartoon

Something is happening: we are becoming the first universal nation in history. Holy smoke! The half-true, evolving, poetic proclamation of America is becoming truer and truer: we are a free people; we do come from everywhere. There are some specific potential problems and some specific potential blessings associated with this development, which will be discussed in a moment. But if you believe that the American drama is being played out toward a purpose, then the non-Europeanization of America is heartening news of an almost transcendental quality.

The Noisome Nine

Whatever happened to the conservative Supreme Court heralded so loudly and so optimistically by Republican Tories and so bleakly and distressingly by the lib-min gang when the Senate called off its inquisition and allowed William H. Rehnquist (appointed by Nixon as Associate Justice, by Reagan as Chief Justice) to be primus inter pares?

Since then the court has decreed quota promotions for black policemen and women, extra perks and coddling for refugees (many of whom are the common garden variety of illegal aliens) and more safeguards for minority voters. Perhaps worst of all, it has forbidden prosecutors to use peremptory challenges to keep blacks off juries, though they can still resort to this old courtroom precedent to "de-whiten" jury boxes. Old Earl Warren (appointed by Eisenhower) couldn't have done better himself.

And what about those soi-disant conservative associate justices? Sandra Day O'Connor (appointed by Reagan) wanders so omnidirectionally across the ideological spectrum that you only know where she stands when women's rights are in the picture. Antonin Scalia (appointed by Reagan) was supposed to tilt as much to the right as Rehnquist, but so far he has voted seven times with and six times against the Chief Justice. When the issue was voting rights for minorities, Scalia swung swiftly and predictably to the anti-Majority side. After all, his folks came to this country via the southern passage. Rehnquist steadfastly guards the Majority fort, but he is terribly alone. On the really important decisions, he is invariably on the losing side.

Thurgood Marshall (appointed by Johnson) votes by rote (racial rote, that is). The doddering William J. Brennan (another brilliant Eisenhower appointee) is an old Irish Labor goon, whose opinions often quiver with the Emerald Isle's ancient rancor towards the Sceptred Isle. The falsely named middle-of-the-road or mildly conservative justices -- John Paul Stevens III, Harry A. Blackmun and Lewis F. Powell Jr. -- have long ago removed the rightist tinge to their personae. Byron White, who never pretended to be a conservative and was appointed by Kennedy, has often proven himself to be friendler to the Majority than the justices appointed by Nixon and Ford (Stevens, Blackmun and Powell).

In sum, the Noisome Nine is still as noisome as ever, still leading us hell-bent down into the smoking crater of minority racism and skin-color quotas. Instead of being the last-resort interpreter of our laws, the Supreme Court has become both the chief lawmaker and the chief lawbreaker. At the 200th anniversary of the Constitution, the learned justices are busier than ever trashing it.

Let anyone who disagrees with the above comments find one syllable in the Constitution that even remotely justifies and condones reverse discrimination.

Barry Goldstein, an NAACP Legal Defense Fund shyster, is very satisfied with the Rehnquist Court, as well he might be.

Kosherizing the Constitution

When the people who lead the war against mixing church and state want to do some similar mixing of their own, few become the wiser. How many taxpayers in Los Angeles County know they have been forced to pay for the inspection of kosher meat and poultry? How many taxpayers in California know their state legislature has approved $100,000 to expand the L.A. program into five other counties? One of them, Orange County, has refused the religious subsidy because it so blatantly defies the religious strictures so stridently set forth in the Constitution.

Interestingly, the original measure was introduced by Tom Hayden, the ex-terrorist, Viet Cong Comsymp and Jane Fonda's better half. (How could anyone be Jane's worse half?) Onetime Weatherman Hayden now spends a great deal of his time keeping a weather eye out for the Jewish vote.

To see that kosher meat and poultry is kosher used to be the job of rabbis. It need not be pointed out that Jews would have more money in their pockets if the costs of the inspection were charged to the largely non-kosher public. And, lo, it was so done in Southern California.

As for the kosher food industry in general (annual sales approach $1 billion), over 16,000 products are now being sold with that mysteriously cryptic K or U on the label. Ralston-Purina, Proctor & Gamble, General Mills and General Foods are just a few of the food giants that pay a cash tribute to rabbis for the "privilege" of putting the kosher seal of approval on products sold overwhelmingly to non-Jews, most of whom don't have a clue as to what the K and U mean or what kosher food is all about.

Jews themselves are not too taken with kosher products per se. It is estimated that only 10% to 20% of the 5.8 million Jews in this country buy kosher products because of the kosher identification. Hebrew National, which sells kosher meats, claims that more than twice as many Catholics as Jews buy its hot dogs.

Dartmouth Is Offal the Wall

It's difficult to decide whether to laugh or retch at the "safe sex kit" made available at no cost to Dartmouth students returning to class after the Christmas holidays last winter. The contents were so downright filthy that just to name them might violate what is left of the country's obscenity laws. Suffice it to say, at a time in life when young men and women are most easily coarsened, Dartmouth attempted to drown them in a hot tub of offal.

To give just a hint of what was being passed out, either in the form of devices and literature or in a traveling dormitory road show, we might mention such uplifting topics as "rimming," "fisting" and "internal water sports." Among other pieces of emetic advice, students were urged to become comfortable with the taste of contraceptive foam.

Quite a place, Dartmouth! Before it became a sexual sewer, it used to be a college. Incidentally, the man behind this display of cloacal tastelessness is Dr. John Turco, head of Dartmouth's health services.

Jewish Heroes Bite the Dust

If asked to name the greatest naval hero of the 20th century, Joe Blow might say Hyman Rickover, the super-egotistical "father of the nuclear Navy." Even when it was discovered -- after he had retired, of course -- that he had taken bribes from General Dynamics (expensive gifts from government contractors are a form of bribery and against the law), Rickover's reputation, thanks to the media's and Congress's inherent partiality for minority crooks, was hardly tarnished.

Now that he is dead and gone, we learn that Admiral Hymie almost sank a brand new nuclear sub, La Jolla, by combining his ignorance with his chutzpah. It happened during La Jolla's trials when the time came to put the sub under maximum stress. Rickover was to give the "all ahead" order after the engines had been put in full reverse -- a very dangerous maneuver because subs are not designed to go backwards. If they are allowed to get up speed in that direction, the heavily weighted stern will quickly angle down and drag the sub to hull-cracking depths.

After it was stopped and "dead in the water," Rickover ordered La Jolla to go into a full reverse for 180 seconds. As the crew waited for the "all ahead" order, the stern dropped precipitously and the sub began to descend so fast that the hull popped like gunfire under the immense pressure. When Rickover finally gave the breathlessly awaited order, the sub, now out of control, shot up and roller-coasted into a 40-degree-down angle that dragged it into depths where it was never designed to go. Crewmen and equipment were thrown every which way for the five or six minutes that elapsed before La Jolla could be righted. In a few more seconds she would have reached the "crush" depth that would have spelled her doom.

Another Jewish "hero" in the process of being demystified is David Sarnoff, the longtime head of RCA, when it owned NBC. Most Americans have been taught that Sarnoff was the boy genius who was the first to hear on the wireless that the Titanic was going down and heroically stayed at the receiver through the whole disaster. In a new biography, The General: David Sarnoff and the Rise of the Telecommunications Industry (Harper & Row, NY), author Kenneth Bilby informs us that Sarnoff was only one of several young telegraph operators on duty that fateful night and that the story of the 21-year-old Jew sacrificing his sleep for three whole days and nights in order to keep the world abreast of the tragic news about the sunken ocean liner was dreamed up years later by RCA public relations flacks.

Name Games

Now that most else in this country is going by the boards, why not kill the time-honored Western practice of having kids take the surname of their fathers? Why not let all parents imitate that Pennsylvania couple, who changed their boy's last name to "Sue"? What about Teddy Roth-Tubman, the son of Pierce Barker and Carol Frost? The Roth derives from the Jewish author, much admired by Teddy's parents; the Tubman from the noted anti-slavery Negress, equally admired by the Barker-Frosts. Can it be assumed that "Teddy" was inspired by the water-logged senator from Chappaquiddick?

To prevent more monstrosities like the Roth-Tubman moniker, some states are beginning to tighten up their laws and regulations about names. It hasn't been easy. In 1981 the super-liberal, Lebanese-descended Judge Robert R. Merhige Jr. threw out North Carolina's attempt to put some order in the name game.

New Jersey is now wondering what to do about Mr. Greenberg and his bride, Ms. McBride(!), who have named their child "Greenbride."

Flogged Flag Flies

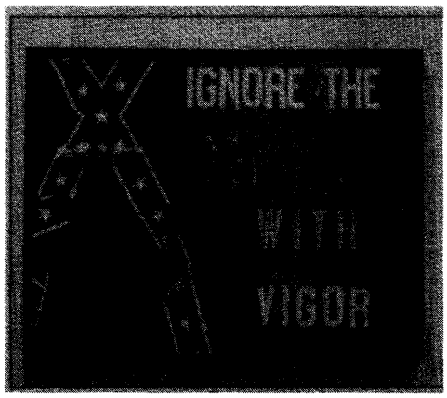
The flag is back! In 1963 an Ole Miss art professor, G. Ray Kerciu, was charged with breaking a state law by desecrating the Confederate Flag when he hung his art deco Stars and Bars in a university museum. It took a direct order from the U. of Mississippi's administration to get him to remove it.

In mid-February, after a 24-year "exile," it was again hanging in a university art show -- and again stirring up moanings and groanings of racism. This time around, however, it was decided that the anti-racist message of Kerciu's flag with the century's most incandescent six-letter word overrode all other objections.



Southerners worthy of the name complained that the artist was still "messing around" with a sacred banner. Some third-grade teachers asked that the painting be turned to the wall so as not to offend their teeny-bopper pupils. Charles Blackwell, a local lawyer, who filed the original charges against Kerciu more than two decades ago, declared he was now of a mind to let sleeping dogs lie.

Academic Freedom Races Backward

It was obvious from the start. In 1982, Ernest F. Dube, a black professor at State University of Stony Brook (NY), informed his students -- correctly -- that Zionism was a form of racism. So Ernest F. Dube, after four years of intra- and extra-mural wrangling, was denied tenure. If he is a good boy, however, he may still be able to teach in some other institutions of higher learning in the Empire State's university system.

It took a little while and the standard Jewish finagling, but there was little doubt about the finale. When it comes to the crunch, Jewish power still makes black power look wan and pale.

The faculty at Stony Brook actually stood up for academic freedom by speaking up for Dube, a member of the African Studies Department. But it was a waste of breath. Ever since a visiting Israeli professor in 1983 accused Dube, born in South Africa, of "sloganeering that is practiced by the anti-Semite," his days were numbered. Governor Mario Cuomo, the great friend of freedom of expression, felt compelled, and probably was compelled, to gratuitously inject New York State into the argument by dishonestly calling Dube "intellectually dishonest."

In the end the ADL and the Jewish powers that be congratulated themselves on another victory. At this rate it won't be long until no one anywhere will be permitted to utter one word about Zionism unless it is first cleared by the B'nai B'rith's Grand Saar.

Seizing a Vocabulary

A headline in the Washington Post (Dec. 10) read, "White Men Losers in Wage Race." That's the sort of goof that can cost a headline-writer his job these days. When describing the minority takeover of California, for instance, one always says, "Asians, Mexicans Big Gainers in Census Returns," never "Whites Big Losers."

In case anyone fails to understand why that is, consider something which Andrew Delbanco wrote in the New Republic (Dec. 8, 1986):

> The highly influential Ideological Origins of the American Revolution [by Bernard Bailyn] described the seizure by a whole people of a vocabulary that allowed them to understand -- and to repudiate -- a series of economic and political events that had previously revealed to them no coherent meaning. "The historian's . . . real task," Bailyn had written a few years earlier [in Education in the Forming of American Society] "is to describe the dawning of ideas and the creation of forms -- surprising, strange, and awkward then, however familiar they may have become since -- in response to the changing demands of circumstances." What had been in the early 1760s a swirl of inarticulate resentments against British "oppression" became, by the mid-1770s, an effective catalog of grievances upon which the possibility of revolutionary action could be advanced . . . . The result was nothing less than the birth of a new world . . . .

Without realizing it, Delbanco has described the Majority's task today: to develop and proclaim a rhetoric which brings order to the confusing "swirl" of actions taken against us.

By actually telling the truth for once and calling white men "losers," the Post's poorly housebroken headline writer made the job a trifle easier.

Obligatory Successor

One of the oldest media ploys is to speculate on the successor of some retiring Jewish editor or publisher of a Jewish magazine or newspaper. Various candidates are proposed, some of them non-Jews. But when the die is cast, the winner invariably turns out to be Jewish.

The same old guessing game was played with the New Yorker, whose Jewish editor, William Shawn, was due for retirement. The name of Charles McGrath, an assistant editor, was dutifully bandied about, but when the new editor was appointed by New Yorker owner Samuel Isadore Newhouse Jr., it was not McGrath, as any Instaurationist would have foretold, but Robert A. Gottlieb, the editor-in-chief of Knopf, also owned by Samuel Isadore Newhouse Jr.

Long columns in USA Today and the Washington Post immedately began oozing over Gottlieb's remarkable and incomparable literary genius, carefully repeating such puffery as Jewish novelist Cynthia Ozick's, "He's the best editor alive in the U.S. at this moment . . . . He sees into the mind of the writer . . . . He's also one of the kindest people . . . . My esteem for him is simply unsurpassed."

The New Yorker, founded with Fleishmann yeast money, was bought by Newhouse in 1985. Its success was largely due to its first editor, Harold Ross, a non-Jew, and the non-Jewish cartoonist-writer, James Thurber. The New Yorker's second editor, William Shawn, simply followed the path that had already been carved out by his more intelligent and more creative predecessor, while turning the magazine even more to the left with a plethora of anti-nuke, anti-Nazi and anti-Majority propaganda.

In the oceans of praise for Gottlieb, no mention was made of his handling of John Kennedy Toole, the author of the Pulitzer Prize novel, A Confederacy of Dunces. Gottlieb, when editor at Simon & Schuster, played cat and mouse with Toole's ms. for two years, finally cutting him off so brutally that the author was driven to suicide. The success of his novel was entirely posthumous. "He's a creature . . . a Jewish creature, not a man, not a human being," said Toole's mother of Gottlieb. So much for the editor's "kindness."

Gottlieb's successor as the bossman at Knopf is the exception that proves the rule stated in the first part of this article. He is Ajai Singh Mehta of New Delhi, India. While attending a literary gathering in Australia, Sonny, as he is called, was busted for cocaine possession. No, Sonny is not Jewish; neither is he a WASP. So let's amend the rule. If a Jewish publisher can't find a Jew to fill an editor's slot, he will settle for a Sikh.

Raceless Crime Statistics

The FBI Uniform Crime Report, which lists arrests by race, is one of the few factual sources of the race war now going on in America -- a war that the media try to cover up by calling it a crime wave. If the White House's Office of Management and Budget has its way, even this meager supply of data will dry up. The OMB, on the flimsy excuse that questions about race increase paperwork, wants the FBI to stop the practice.

Nothing in the present-day U.S. social order cries out louder for more study and research than crime. Who is perpetrating it? Who are the victims? FBI reports and other official studies tell us something about the criminal and the crimes, but very little about the victims, whose numbers, if they appear at all, only appear in small print on complicated tables. Almost nothing is ever said in news stories about the number of white victims of black crime. We know that blacks are committing about half the violent crimes in this country, though they only represent about 12-13% of the population. And we are told over and over again that almost all black crime is committed against blacks.

What Majority members want to know is how many of their people are being murdered, raped, assaulted and robbed by nonwhites each year. The estimates are horrendous, as Instauration (May 1984) discovered when it looked into the matter. If the FBI reports are forbidden to list arrests by race in the future, it will become even more difficult to keep an eye on race-based crime.

As for listing the race of victims, whoever heard of an army fighting and winning a war when it was not allowed to know the extent of its own casualties?

Alien Wire Service

United Press International, the nation's second largest wire service, is now owned by a Mexican, Mario Vázquez Rana. Its president is Milton Benjamin. To beef up its newsgathering staff, UPI recently hired four top newsmen, two from the Washington Post, one from Newsweek and one UPI veteran, to serve as managing editors for its news, national and international and broadcast service divisions. Although it's dangerous to be definite about such "sensitive" matters, at least one of the new editors is certainly Jewish (Barry Sussman) and one or two others possibly belong to that lionized category.

Whatever their Majority or minority status, the fact that three of the new editors come from such bastions of liberal bias as the Post and Newsweek bodes ill for any manifestation of objectivity in future UPI dispatches.

Worrisome Possibility

Though we looked hard, we could only find one, just one, member of Congress who publicly and loudly criticized Israel's role in the Irangate snafu. He was Republican Dick Cheney (R-WY).

The attitude of the other congressmen was best summed up by a Capitol Hill staffer in Insight (Feb. 2, 1987, p. 25). Asked about upcoming congressional committee investigations and whether the trail might lead to Israel, he replied,

> It's pointing in that direction and you have to be worried about that. No one wants to be seen to be Israel-bashing. Just starting to look in that direction makes me nervous.

Since Israel has been selling arms to Iran for years, it will be amusing to hear the Israeli lobby's argument the next time it tries to block U.S. weapons sales to moderate Arab states like Saudi Arabia.

Münchausen and the Holocaust

Two Israeli doctors have published a curious paper, "Otolaryngologic Cases of Münchausen's Syndrome." In layman's English, the title means, "Cases Where People Pretend to Be Suffering from an Eye, Ear, Nose or Throat Infection in Order to Get Treatment or Hospitalization."

One case recounted by the Zionist physicians should be of particular interest to Holocaust skeptics. It involves a 42-year-old woman who was treated for a swelling in her right cheek. She said she had been born in Holland in 1939 and that her whole family had been exterminated in German concentration camps. At age 22 she married and had two children, who were killed with her husband in an automobile accident. Then she stated she had remarried and had two additional children, who were still among the living.

Upon investigation, 75% of this was found to be untrue. The woman had really been born in Indonesia and had spent some years in a Japanese prison camp. Her family had not been "exterminated" in German camps. In fact, her parents and siblings were still alive. Moreover, the husband and two children who had supposedly died in an auto accident had never existed. The patient's actual husband and children were the only ones she ever had.

It's a wonder the woman wasn't called as a prosecution witness in the Demjanjuk trial in Israel.

40,000 Cutthroats

For some time after the Mariel boatlift of 1980, the federal government insisted there were only 2,000 hardened criminals among the "refugees." Now it admits there were some 6,500 felons in the influx.

Police departments around the country know this is still an ultra-conservative estimate. In the Seattle area, where about 500 Marielitos have settled, Lt. Gerald Adams, the chief of the police intelligence unit, says he can document the local arrest of at least 266 of them in a total of 589 crimes, including 11 homicides.

In Las Vegas, a special Mariel Task Force reports that 700 of the 1,500 resident Marielitos have a local arrest record. Among these 700 are 500 who are now recognized as "hardcore, career criminals."

Los Angeles cops also have a Mariel Task Force, formed after a series of brutal murders in 1983. They have arrest records for 2,000 of the 3,000 Marielitos living in central L.A.

The nation's police now generally believe that about 40,000 career criminals were sent by Fidel Castro to Jimmy Carter during the five-month "Freedom Flotilla." ("Free at last!" is indeed what the people in Cuba must have exclaimed.)

The U.S. Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations has opened a probe into the Mariel crime network. Says investigator Bruce Selcraig: "What really stands out is that the Mariel criminals are so enormously violent, and the uniqueness of the situation: they were, essentially, sponsored by our own government."

An Early End to WWI?

It might be fitting to add an historical codicil, as it were, to Robert Hall's interesting triad of articles on the two world wars (Instauration, Jan.-Mar. 1987). I refer to the Lansdowne Letter, which, though unmentioned by Hall, was one of the few serious attempts to prevent many of the tragic errors to which he referred.

In 1916 Lord Lansdowne, a Conservative member without portfolio in Prime Minister Asquith's coalition government, wrote a memo suggesting a toning down of Britain's belligerence in order to pave the way for a negotiated peace. Although Asquith welcomed the communication, some of the more bellicose British leaders, fearful of any manifestation of pacifism, used it as an excuse to install the warmongering second coalition government, that of Lloyd George, in December 1916.

Almost a year later Lansdowne put his peace-seeking views in a famous letter published in the Daily Telegraph (Nov. 29, 1917). He recommended that Britain go on record as (1) not desiring the annihilation of Germany, (2) not wishing to impose a government on the Germans that was not of their own choosing, (3) rejecting any desire to prevent Germany from being one of the world's great commercial powers, (4) expressing a willingness to look into the question of "freedom of the seas," (5) agreeing to enter into an international pact to resolve disputes with other nations.

The letter was greeted with outcries of appeasement and even treason from the hardliners, not only in Britain but from Britain's allies, which by then included the United States. It was said that if Lansdowne's 1916 memo, which contained the same views put forth in his letter a year later, had been adopted by the British government at that time, there would have been a real chance of a negotiated settlement. But by 1917 it was too late. By then the war party in Germany had taken over completely and, with Russia on the verge of collapse, was counting on a military victory.

Crime Convention

Atlanta was picked as the site of the 1988 Democratic Convention the very same day it was announced that they city's crime rate had jumped 17%. In the white northwest section, homicides, rapes and aggravated assaults jumped 42.7%. This is where inner-city blacks are beginning to "make their days."

"Red" Subversion

Affirmative action and interracial sex probably explain the nation's latest case of treason, the one that has received the least publicity. Accused spy Sgt. Clayton Lonetree is a Winnebago/Navajo Indian from Minneapolis, where he likely grew up ogling but never touching blondes. When he became a Marine, Lonetree had little trouble being promoted to the once-elite Marine Security Guard Battalion -- which almost certainly has been required to attain a minority quota. The sergeant was even selected to help guard President Reagan at the Geneva Summit of 1985. (But then, with all those cameras rolling, race was likely a factor in that selection as well.)

Lonetree was also picked to work at the CIA's most important field station, the one operating from the U.S. Embassy in Moscow. It was there that the KGB, which knows a thing or two about racial dynamics, managed to have the lonely redman fall in love -- or was it "in lust"? -- with a very nice young Soviet woman/agent who was employed by the embassy as a "translator."

Lonetree, whose lawyer is William Kunstler, is now in solitary confinement at Quantico (VA), charged with secretly allowing KGB agents into the embassy to plant audio devices, with revealing the names of Soviet subjects on the CIA payroll, and other high crimes and misdemeanors. The CIA's Moscow staff must now be painstakingly replaced, while some Soviets may have paid a stiffer penalty. The U.S. Embassy in Vienna is also reeling: Lonetree was transferred there just last year, and, when the KGB obligingly forwarded his lady love/agent, the treachery was repeated.

The Defense Department and the CIA are trying hard to downplay this grave breach of security, and for once the media seem happy to go along, perhaps because Clayton Lonetree's father and brother are both "professional Indians." They run a minority job placement service for their race in St. Paul. Clayton, incidentally, was a mediocrity in school, and his selection as an elite embassy guard "surprised many in his home town." Senator Rudy Boschwitz was among those recommending him for the job.

For all the above reasons, "the story of how Lonetree . . . fell may never be made public" (Washington Post, Feb. 10, 1987).

As might be expected, the second Marine arrested was a black, Arnold Bracy. He also was apparently lured into espionage by white skin. (Some reports were that his Lorelei was a Ukrainian Jewess.) Also as might be expected, the third Marine to be arrested was a white, S.Sgt. Robert Stufflebeam, though he was not charged with with spying. Even in the business of consorting with the enemy, there must be "racial balance" these days.

ASPISHLY YOURS

IT SOMETIMES SEEMS that the newspapers only want us to know as much as is good for us. Nowhere is this more apparent than in the coverage given the atom bomb. Forty-two years have elapsed since the bombing of Japan. In terms of human generations, this means that a great deal of vital information is now available on the genetic consequences. Very large numbers of children, grandchildren and even great-grandchildren of the survivors of Hiroshima and Nagasaki are now living. Few populations have ever been studied so closely. The findings have been straight forward and simple. There was much radiation sickness on the part of those who were exposed to the bomb blast, but thus far there have been no genetic after-effects. None whatever.

Birth defects among the offspring of survivors -- including those who suffered radiation sickness -- are no higher than among the general Japanese population. Yet the newspapers have not merely buried this story; they have not printed it at all. Apparently they don't consider it good for us.

Forty-two years ago we were advised to await the results with bated breath. Now that the results are in, there is a total blackout. In fact, the impression is artfully given that the aftermath has been as dire as originally predicted, on the strength of what is known about the use of radiation to induce mutations in laboratory plants and animals.

That nothing of the sort has happened, that Japan is clean, is so amazing that some of the scientists involved here have conjectured that human germ plasm is uniquely protected, perhaps by a gene which evolved as a defense against cosmic radiation. Yet there are no mutants to be found in Japan among the plant and animal populations which were exposed to the bombs.

The reportage of this news is a marvelous example of how the First Amendment works: The press is granted the freedom to lie. No power on earth can make it tell the truth, or even report the news. No statement is more quickly pounced on by the press and squelched as the statement that a nuclear bomb is just another bomb. And yet, with one horrible exception, this appears more and more with each passing year to be the simple truth.

You don't have to take my word for it. Just ask yourself what would happen if the Japanese were having mutant babies. Or even mutant pigeons, cockroaches or weeds! Nothing could keep such stories from coming out. The Japanese press would see to it, if ours didn't, and there is nothing our press is hungrier for.

The reason you don't see such stories is itself amazing news. And this amazing news is not reported. Instead we hear that there will be a nuclear winter, that there will be no longterm survivors, that the earth will die, that nuclear warfare is unthinkable, and nuclear power too.

I grew up believing that we, as Americans, need only keep an open mind and, protected by a free press, we will be able to come to right decisions. But how are right decisions to be made if we are told only what is "good" for us?

As I said, there is a horrible exception. The amazing news from Japan is apparently attributable to the fact that the bombs over Hiroshima and Nagasaki were detonated in the air, at about 1900 feet. If, however, they are detonated on the ground, all bets are off. Then all the dire predictions come raining down. Long-lived radioactive elements which get into the food chains and into the bones and chromosomes are created in an instant, and rise in clouds so dense that the sun will indeed be blotted out, and extinction will follow. From this it seems safe to conclude that what the newspapers would be headlining, if they thought the truth would set us free, is not "Ban the Bomb" -- futile since there are so many. It is "Detonate Them High." For Christ's sake (and for the sake of Allah, Yahweh, et al.), the front pages would be screaming, please don't anybody detonate them on the ground. Dismantle the stuff in the embassy basements. Put proximity fuses on the ICBMs.

A few thousand feet makes all the difference. It is a fine distinction, perhaps, but it is undoubtedly the most important distinction on earth today. The facts reported here are several years old now. Yet where are the committees, the marching crowds, the banners? Where are the masses who know what is good for them? The all-important fine distinction is never made. It is worth your life to try and make it. Yet if ever there was a message which could make the difference between life and death, this may well be it. I commend it to your attention.

WHEN MY CHILDREN were growing up, we kept three or four horses. The girls especially liked to ride. We got into horses because my wife discovered that a horse cost no more than a large stuffed animal, that is to say, one or two hundred dollars. Although our mounts were a little thick in the ankle and in the coat, our kids won a lot of ribbons on them. These cheap horses loved to jump and solve problems just like the more costly ones. I made a riding ring with cavelettis and jumps. We had three miles of trails, a good enough barn, a paddock with a spring in it and an old farmer who brought hay and kept them shod for practically nothing. All of our horses were of lowly birth (they were called "grade" horses), except one. Our old farmer knew a rich woman who wanted to find a good home for a purebred Arabian mare, and he recommended us. So we acquired an animal that was worth several thousand dollars, and full of vim and vigor. Pony clubs exist in such a snobbish world that it made a difference, and revenge was sweet.

Once a year each horse had to be vetted; it had to have its shots and its Coggins test. The Coggins test was for equine encephalitis -- an invariably fatal, mosquito-borne viral infection recently introduced from Argentina. The state required every horse to be tested annually; the test was for the presence of antibodies to the virus, not for the virus itself. At first it had been feared that the entire horse population of the U.S. might be wiped out, but the Coggins test reduced the incidence of the disease to negligible proportions. As you may have guessed, our purebred Arab flunked her very first Coggins test. A vet in the employ of the state came down and gave us the bad news. He told us the horse had to be destroyed. My wife was very upset. Equine encephalitis is a catastrophic wasting disease, and our animal obviously didn't have it. If every horse was like her, there would have been no such disease. It seemed unfair that she, who was naturally immune, should be shot just because she tested positive. We protested, and the vet allowed as how there was an option. We could send her to the state agricultural college, where they would perform a more elaborate test for the presence of the virus, and if she wasn't infective, we could have her back. The cost was $800 plus transportation. I said, "Shoot her." The nacker came and took her away. (None of our other horses ever got the disease.)

The AIDS epidemic is exactly comparable; yet the medical profession and the state are handling it in an entirely opposite way. They are protecting the infected population! AIDS-infected individuals are left free to sign themselves in and out of hospitals, and when they are out, they are free to return to their haunts and infect others. They are almost paid to do so. They are "educated" as to the dangers, but they are given anonymity and opportunity, and we all know what education is worth where the sex drive is concerned, not to mention the motive on the part of the doomed to bring down the rest of us with them. As for the potential carriers, like our mare, there is no effort made whatsoever to identify them.

The other night I listened to the Surgeon General being quizzed by a panel of reporters on the occasion of the release of his official report on AIDS. The only recommendation was for the education of the public on how uninfective AIDS patients are -- that transmission requires "intimate contact." The reporters asked him why he was so lax in defending the public against this new and terrible communicable disease. Why did he not invoke quarantine? The Surgeon General's answer was amazing. He said that there was nothing the state or the medical profession could do. He added that, in his opinion, the only survivors would be the chaste and the strictly monogamous.

Now, as I listened, I knew from my experience with our Arabian mare that he had just told an outright lie. The public can be protected against such a disease, and very effectively. The medical profession and the state know just what to do. His complacent comment on the chaste and monogamous being the only survivors amazed me even more. There are figures on the incidence of such individuals. The Kinsey Report puts them at about 25% of the population. Thus if the Surgeon General is right, perhaps three-fourths of the species will soon be dead or dying. This puts an entirely different complexion on the Surgeon General's report. It changes everything. The argument is removed to another plane. It puts AIDS in the same category as the BOMB. It raises the question -- not how the medical profession and the state should act in an emergency -- but how large the human population should be.

Some say the human population is too large. It is a very controversial subject, needless to say, but it seems to me that very likely it is too large. It may very well be that about 75% of us today are surplus, and need to be got rid of. It may very well be that accomplishing this is the central problem facing us -- or, at least, facing Nature. In solving this problem, Nature would seem to have two recourses open to it. One is to cause the overpopulated species to control itself; the other is to have another species do the job for it.

Several decades ago it looked as though we were going to do it ourselves, whether we liked it or not. We suddenly had a weapon commensurate with the job. But the BOMB, for all the hullabaloo surrounding it, has not been used on schedule, and atomic warfare may be indefinitely postponed. Having failed with the first recourse, has Nature now come up with the second? The AIDS bug knows its way around. It is a communicable infection that takes advantage of the most insistent form of human communication. And our authorities welcome it. They aid and abet it. They do not take effectual measures against it. They do not, for instance, institute compulsory testing of everyone in the nation -- man, woman and child -- by, say, the Western Blot, or a cheap rapid equivalent, such as the Karpas-cell test. They do not invoke the law of quarantine, whereby all positives would be sequestered (locked up together) with the option, say, of paying for the more expensive test to see if they have the virus (are infective) and if not, allowed out.

From the point of view of Rev. Malthus, AIDS almost seems a blessing. Here is a means of bringing our species down to size -- and one which the Surgeon General evidently likes and accepts. Can it be that Mother Earth is about to be saved? And just in the nick of time? Or is it just our nation that is to be brought down?

Ponderable Quote

The current Wall Street arbitrage scandal, the New York Parking Violations Bureau scandal, and a number of similar events recently have brought to the attention of the American Jewish Community a segment of its membership that we would rather ignore: white-collar criminals, who exist in fair profusion . . . . What does it mean when a Lower East Side yeshiva linked to one of the most revered talmudists of our time launders money for criminals in order to keep its doors open in the face of declining contributions? What does it mean when those being arrested for white-collar crimes are members of the boards of some of our most important philanthropic and educational institutions cutting across all ideological and political lines?

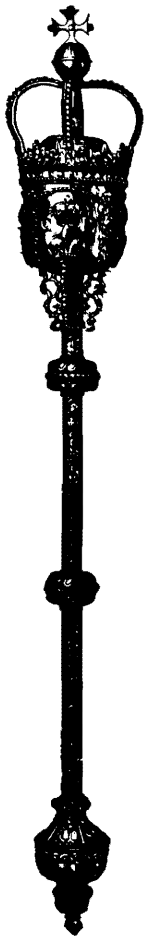
Notes from the Sceptred Isle - John Nobull

A particularly pernicious role is played by international organisations which purport to bring together young leaders from different countries. What they actually do is seek out clever second-raters for promotion, and blacklist all those who show signs of being insufficiently brainwashed by the media.

One such organisation is called Young Königswinter, which brings together young Britons and Germans who are expected to be leaders of their respective countries in the year 2010. Among the participants at the 1986 conference was Toby Young, who is unlikely to have furthered his career with an article about it in the London Observer (Sept. 9, 1986). How he came to be invited is a bit of a mystery, as the participants were all co-opted on the recommendation of members of the Senior Königswinter conference organisation, a collection of play-it-safe young politicos who have been allowed to succeed.



The official theme of the conference was "Our Violent Society," but you will not be surprised to hear that the main emphasis was on World War II. Young describes how, during a sightseeing tour of West Berlin, "the guide on the coach took it upon himself to give us a comprehensive critique of British military historians. Liddell Hart was at fault for failing to mention the holocaust in The Other Side of the Hill; David Irving should not have suggested that Hitler knew nothing of the concentration camps throughout his reign as Führer. "The German people did this terrible thing to the Jews, they must never be allowed to forget this, I think!" Readers for the Board of Deputies of British Jews will have noticed the snide effect of the phrase "took it upon himself" and the clumsy hypocrisy conveyed by the quoted words, "I think," at the end of the guide's statement.

Notice that the guide omits to mention the name of the book in which Irving gives his grounds for thinking as he does, because the book does not state that Hitler knew nothing about the concentration camps -- only that he apparently knew nothing about the extermination camps. Nor does the guide mention that no one has taken up Irving's offer of a thousand pounds to anyone in a position to prove his statement about Hitler to be wrong.

Toby Young reported, "First stop was a Nazi death-chamber" complete with meat-hooks (probably where the conspirators of the 1944 bomb plot were done away with). At the Berlin Wall, where "our party waited in line to climb the platform and look at the East Germans, as at creatures in a zoo," Young made himself unpopular by crying out, "Don't feed the animals."

At the incredibly slanted "Reichstag exhibition of German history, the Brits tactfully opted to visit the Frederick-the-Great section, while the Germans unhesitatingly chose the Third Reich." Afterwards, most of the members of the guided tour were to go on to visit Auschwitz, including a young woman who had been "visibly shaken" by the meat-hook death chamber. As Young comments, "I couldn't help feeling that . . . these intelligent young people would now much rather 'forget the whole thing.' "

German views of Britain were not very cheerful: "London street-life, they believed, consists entirely of pitched battles between rival football supporters who pause only to string up the nearest Pakistani to a lamp-post. Such is the effect of the way Britain's troubles are reported in the German press."

What is extraordinary is how many young Britons and Frenchmen get on with the Germans, despite years and years of indoctrination by comic papers diabolising the Nazis, slanderous articles in the press, and films in which Jews like Erich von Stroheim play the part of German officers shouting, "Zey are not beople -- zey are only Chews!"

U.S. News & World Report (Sept. 1, 1986) has an item called "Ike: an Overrated Warrior?" which contains two conflicting viewpoints. The first is that of Nigel Hamilton, biographer of Field-Marshal Lord Montgomery. He argues that General Eisenhower was caught off balance at the Battle of the Bulge, to such an extent that General Walter Bedell Smith insisted he should hand over command to Montgomery. Montgomery then created order out of chaos by coordinating the efforts of a million American troops with those of the British and Canadian armies, and slowly brought the German offensive to a halt.

Generals Patton and "Lightning Joe" Collins were then anxious to attack in the wintry Ardennes, an operation which Montgomery opposed. Monty wanted to seize the Ruhr. If successful, this would have ended the war six months earlier. Incidentally, failure to seize the Ruhr was responsible for 100,000 American casualties in the Ardennes, where the chief loser of face was General Omar Bradley. Never was truer word spoken in jest than when an American reporter coined the headline, "General Bradley Flies Back to Front."

Patton didn't much like the British, as Hemingway gleefully observed, but he and Montgomery had something in common. Both wanted to drive on to Berlin (as did Churchill) and get there before the Russians. In view of what followed, Patton's death in a car crash looks as suspect as Rommel's.

Ike refused to countenance any advance on Berlin. His preferred stance "on a broad front" turned out to be disastrous. In fact, there is now no doubt whatsoever that he was holding back for purely political reasons.

In a companion article in U.S. News & World Report, Ike's grandson, David, does not deny the above outline of events. Even Bradley, after the capture by the Americans of the Remagen Bridge, wanted to widen the bridgehead. Ike warned against doing this. He was concerned about keeping Western agreements reached with the Soviets at Yalta. Yet Field Marshal Kesselring, who had taken over the entire German western front, was willing to surrender "in order to facilitate the Allied occupation of Germany and deny it to the Soviets." Ike and Bradley, both tired men, ruled out any advance on Berlin. When Montgomery nevertheless attempted to advance, he was stopped with the help of General Marshall in Washington. Yet Ike had to exert himself several times to prevent the American forces from reaching Berlin before the Russians. He even prevented Patton from taking Prague, though the Czechs were trying hard to resist the Russian advance.

David Eisenhower justifies all this on the grounds that "America's supreme goals as a free society cannot be pursued in isolation but have become inseparable from its need to 'enhance liberty, dignity and integrity among peoples and among nations.' " He agrees that "the results were imperfect -- compromises reached with the Soviets continue to scar the continent of Europe -- but there was a triumph over the evils of Nazism." Peace has lasted 40 years. For the Europeans behind the Iron Curtain there is solace: "the ideal of a free Europe lives on."

Now please allow me to comment. Monty was no military genius and his dropping of parachute troops at Arnhem, to face Tiger tanks without artillery support, was a first-class blunder. But, given superiority in numbers and equipment, he was a careful architect of victory. He couldn't have defeated Rommel otherwise. Like Churchill, he still imagined that the British could play a decisive part, refusing to recognise that the declaration of war against Germany had meant the end of Britain as a world power.

Eisenhower and Bradley were ostensibly worried about the casualties which would have been suffered in a drive on Berlin, but Ike's alternative strategy meant the loss of many Allied lives without any useful objective being gained.

David Eisenhower's arguments are equally easy to demolish. If it is a bad thing for Europeans to be behind the Iron Curtain, why was it a bad thing to drive forward and prevent that? The "ideal of a free Europe" is a poor thing by comparison with freedom in 1945. As for (partial) peace having lasted for 40 years since then, does it not have much more to do with the fact that the Americans had the bomb? And just how were "liberty, dignity and integrity among people and among nations" best served by the Yalta agreement? Didn't America have allies in central and eastern Europe other than the Soviet Union? And were their best interests served by holding back? But perhaps they didn't have any comparable "liberty, dignity and integrity" to protect.

Finally, we come to the question of "triumph over the evils of Nazism." It is patently clear that victory over Nazism could have been gained in 1944, saving hundreds of thousands of lives at the front and in the concentration camps (where conditions only began to deteriorate when the supply systems broke down) -- not to speak of further hundreds of thousands killed in the Allied bombing of open cities and myriads murdered by the Russians.

No, there has to be another reason why Eisenhower was ordered to stall. I can see it plainly. The longer the war lasted, the greater the number of Germans killed, wounded and raped. Punishing them was far more important than the loss of half of Europe or an extra couple of hundred thousand Allied troops. What is more, it was important that the supply system should break down and millions should starve -- both Germans (not much photographed) and concentration camp inmates (much photographed). How else would it be possible to build up the extermination myth? Why else did so many camp inmates who had survived several years in the camps come to die in 1945?

The motive for stalling was quite simply revenge -- not revenge by Eisenhower, but by the political wire-pullers. His reward was the presidency of the United States.

I've taken a fleeting look-see at two top-rated TV shows, Moonlighting and Cheers, and found they both have a common theme -- minority male gets Majority female. It's the Great Gatsby story line transmogrified to the boob tube.

Low-born boy gets high-born girl, however, used to be based on class, not race. (Othello was an exception, but he was no sharecropper.) Today it is the ethnic, Jewish or even black boy winning the blonde. All of which (forgive the pun) puts a different complexion on it. Are TV's prime time producers, practically all Jewish, bowing to the Zeitgeist of the times or are they nudging the spirit in the direction they want it to move? Whatever they're up to, they're loading their own daydreams or "successes" into show biz, which has become more or less their private fantasyland.

How the minority male must exult when he watches the near perfect Nordic from Kentucky, Cybill Shepherd, moon over Bruce Willis, the cocky, schlocky minorityite from Rome (NY). In real life, such a liaison would have been almost unthinkable in the U.S. until a few decades ago. In real life today, Cybill is heavy with twins fathered by her after-the-fact husband, Dr. Bruce Oppenheimer.

Take Cheers. The bartender, Ted Danson, though not as smart-alecky and ethnicky as Bruce Willis, is still not the "marrying up" Majority type of bygone days. He is considerably dumber than the girl, Shelley Long, who, though not as tall and statuesque as Cybill, is blonde, educated and well mannered. Like Cybill, she drools over her definitely inferior boyfriend.

Why the drooling? No adequate explanation is ever given. The point is made visually. Minority males, though sloppier, cruder and crummier than Nordic males, are sexier. Nordic males having become wimps, Nordic women prefer men of any other color and of any other brain size.

That's the not-too-subliminal weekly message in Moonlighting and Cheers. It may also be the titillating theme of many lower-rated, lower-budgeted and lower-IQ shows. Fact is, it may be the subconscious electricity that keeps millions of TV screens illuminated.

Channels, a TV trade sheet, reported a dinner catfight between Laurence Tisch, the CBS panjandrum, and Peter Jennings, the ABC news anchor. Considering the liberal-minority bilge pumped out five nights a week by the Canadian-born WASP with the Jewish wife, you'd think Larry and Peter would be as close as Bartyles & Jaymes. Not a bit of it. Larry, who with brother Preston is rumored to give Israel $1 million a year every year, is supposed to have accused Jennings of being "pro-Arab." If he is, no one would ever have guessed it. Perhaps it is just the time-honored way Jews have of putting non-Jews on the defensive. After all, ABC, though shot through with Semitism, like almost every large television enterprise, is now Majority-owned. Being pro-Arab is synonymous with being anti-Semitic, and being anti-Semitic can lead to secret and not-so-secret boycotts, which are never good for business and can be economically suicidal in showbiz.

Larry did mollify his calumny a tad by saying, "You'll never find me in any way interfering with the presentation of the news as long as the news is presented fairly." We can well imagine what he defines as "fair" news, if he thinks Peter's paeans to Zionism are pro-Arab. Larry went on, "But if I were sitting home and I heard a commentary on CBS on any subject that was biased, I think it's my obligation the next day to speak to the head of the news division and say, 'Look, you put on a biased commentary.' "

Larry may have been talking to Peter, but his words could also be taken as a warning to Injun Dan, who, needless to say, is not the kind of crow that has to be taught to caw.

From Instauration's vantage point, one of the very few good things going for hectomillionaire Laurence Tisch is that he is a skinflint. Since CBS News has more million-dollar-a-year men than any other network news outfit, people like Dan Rather, Don Hewitt (the boss of 60 Minutes), Mike Wallace, Morley Safer, Harry Reasoner, Ed Bradley, Diane Sawyer, Charles Kuralt and Charles Osgood are understandably worrying about their fat paychecks. So far the Tisch ax has only fallen on some 200 lesser CBS lights. Let us hope that some or all of the network's obscenely overpaid talking heads will not continue to escape the financial guillotine.

Amerika, the $35 million, 14½-hour detergent drama, was one of TV's greatest publicity scams. Sure, Russia came in for some propaganda jostling. So did the UN with its Nazi-style East German troop commander. But the ones who got jostled the most were the viewers. Kris Kristofferson, the "good American," put on a display of stone-faced acting unequalled in the history of the dramatic arts -- acting carried over into real life when, to crawl back into the good graces of liberal critics, he and some other members of the cast pretended to be contrite for participating in a series that was supposedly harmful to Russian-American relations. Kristofferson, an ex-drug addict and hippie, said he only accepted a part in the show so he could use his influence to make Amerika "more positive." To prove his good intentions, he got himself arrested in an anti-nuke demonstration in Nevada. Just before the cops hauled him away, as the photographers clicked and clicked, he fell on his knees and started praying. Ugh!

I watched Part One of Judith Krantz's I'll Take Manhattan. Enough is enough. The first two hours were so excruciatingly bad that only a certified masochist could have suffered through the remainder of the show. Though the names were carefully Aryanized, it was obvious that the rags-to-riches publisher was as Jewish as his female sidekick-mistress (and editor of his magazines). Since the latter incongruously refuses her boss's repeated proposals of marriage, he finally trips off to Europe, where he weds the perfect British Nordic from the very best of families. Alas, after a few years of marriage, she turns into a nymphomaniac who rushes off to the nearest dark corner -- prop room during a ballet performance, an unoccupied room during a party -- to have instant sex with her husband's ne'er-do-well younger brother.

I read somewhere that Judith Krantz's mother couldn't understand how her daughter could write such a barnyard manual of a book. Judith replied she had several children, had been married for many years and, like any normal woman, had her fantasies. This time the fantasy was the old female Jewish pin-sticker of degrading shiksas while secretly wishing to be one.

Present and future TV shows to miss:

- An as yet unnamed ABC miniseries about Nelson and Winnie Mandela. The convicted, liberal-approved South African terrorist will be apotheosized along with his wife, who goes in for necklaces -- not the bejeweled ones, but the fiery rubbery kind. Harry Belafonte is the front man for the project. Behind the scenes are the usual Jews: writer Fay Kanin and producer Sydney Pollack, among others. In the scenes will be the usual white drumbeaters of anti-white racism: Marlon Brando and Jane Fonda, among others.
- Another upcoming TV hero is that never-sleeping apostle of vengeance, Simon (Nazi-basher) Wiesenthal, who will be memorialized in a four-hour HBO miniseries. Not appearing in the show (we'll bet the farm) will be Frank Walus, whose life was practically wrecked when he was falsely prosecuted as a war criminal. Wiesenthal, a prominent member of the pack that denounced him, actually sued Walus later, after the witch-hunters of the Department of Justice had been forced to drop the case. Bruno Kreisky, the Jewish ex-chancellor of Austria, will also be a no-show. He once broadly hinted that Simon had been in the pay of the Nazis.
- Robert Mitchum will return to the scabrous screen in a sequel to Herman Wouk's Teutonophobic Winds of War. Jane Seymour, an attractive, half-Jewish actress, will take over from Ali McGraw in the 30-hour anti-Nazi epic. One of the high points is when Sir John Gielgud, the British actor of part Lithuanian ancestry, dies a hideous death in a "reconstructed" Auschwitz gas chamber. Dan Curtis, the Jewish director and scripter, took time off to sign some money-grubbing letters for the Simon Wiesenthal Center, in which he boasts that his hate show will help the center "in confronting Holocaust deniers and in seeking out Nazi war criminals and their modern-day successors wherever they may be." Mitchum, who once had grave doubts about Holocaust statistics, is ironically starring in a show that puts him right in the camp of those who produced the figures he dared to doubt.

A 10-part TV series made in South Africa with Hollywood Jewish money is lighting up boob tubes in some American cities without benefit of pickets and bomb threats. How come? Because it doesn't glorify Afrikaners; it glorifies Zulus. This doesn't mean that Shaka Zulu will be praised by the African National Congress. Those Soviet-tilted insurrectionary goons receive most of their black support from the Xhosa tribe, whose members were slaughtered by the hundreds of thousands by Zulu King Shaka in the last century. Tutu, as well as the Mandelas, are Xhosas.

Shaka Zulu has a sprinkling of A-1 British actors in the overwhelmingly native cast. So far only Britain has banned it because the trade unions won't touch anything made in South Africa.

Director William Faure, an Afrikaner renegade, has made King Shaka a cruel but powerful character, who stands head and shoulders above the arrogant, greedy Brits, who eventually defeated him. By building up Zulu history and nationalism, however, the film indirectly gives a boost to the white South African regime. Present-day Zulus are against ANC bombs, sanctions and disinvestment campaigns, and would just as lief kill non-Zulu blacks as whites.

British Columbia, like adjacent Alberta, has been a center of constructive politics in recent years. At present, the province is home to the only premier in Canada with any brains and/or guts, Bill Vander Zalm. A handsome immigrant from Holland, "The Slam," as he is affectionately known, has more than a little in common with Afrikaners. In fact, he drove Vancouver's highly organized radical-leftist community almost to distraction last November by meeting with South African Ambassador Glenn Babb and promising to go in the opposite direction from sanctions, by greatly increasing commerce between the nation and the province.

Jack Munro, leftist president of the powerful Woodworkers Union, cried, "We [British Columbia] will be the laughingstock of the free world." A campaign was swiftly launched to have all three federal parties (left, lefter and leftest) censure Vander Zalm, who belongs to the Socreds (Social Credit Party), an anti-Ottawa political grouping which, regrettably, has almost no clout elsewhere in Canada.

Britain. The British press was all excited in January by the revelation that Britain might have gone to war against Israel in early 1956, if that country's aggressive inroads into Jordan were not halted. Britain had an alliance with Jordan requiring it to come to that Arab country's assistance in the event it was invaded. Consequently, the British General Staff laid out a rather comprehensive contingency plan which, if implemented, might have all but wiped out the Zionist state while it was still aborning.

Needless to say, the plan never came to fruition. In the end, just the opposite happened. Jordan's relations with Britain cooled in the first part of 1956 when King Hussein fired General Glubb, the commander of the Arab Legion. In July, Nasser nationalized the Suez Canal. In November, Britain joined with Israel and France in a surprise attack on Egypt, one of the sorriest events in British military annals. Eisenhower, the last American president not to kowtow to Israel, stopped the war in its tracks and made an ass out of Anthony Eden, the British prime minister who sponsored it. Eden was also the sponsor of the earlier plan to attack Israel.

London and some of Britain's larger cities are becoming more New Yorkish every day. They are now being pockmarked with "no-go" areas, where milkmen, postmen, taxicab drivers, rent collectors, maintenance men and police fear to tread. Altogether 70 areas in London have been designated so dangerous that the police will only enter them with large teams and "with circumspection."

Some postmen in Broadwater Farm Estates, the battleground of one of Britain's worst race riots, will only deliver mail if they have a police escort. Doctors in several cities refuse to go out on night calls. Maintenance men will only work in pairs. Ambulances have been vandalized and looted while drivers and medics have been attending the sick and dying.

The sad thing about all this is that the West Indian blacks, who are largely responsible for the barbarization of London, are relatively law-abiding in their native islands. Feelings of envy and insecurity are aroused and latent criminal propensities emerge when a race is transplanted to a social and economic order to which it is completely unattuned.

If ever a martial court was called for, it is now, in the matter of the flagrant disregard shown recently for the health of the First Battalion of the Queen's Own Highlanders, and their wives and children. Those 600 elite young men, half of whom are married, were recently allowed to take shore leave in the death trap of Malinda, Kenya, a town where perhaps 65% of the prostitutes are infected with the AIDS virus. Apparently, nobody bothered telling Britain's finest that the venereal equivalent of the Black Plague was raging in the area! (Subsequently, members of the Second Battalion of the British Parachute Regiment, passing through the same area, were told they must avoid Kenya's coastal towns -- a measure which predictably angered the Kenyans.)

In the matter of the Highlanders, insult was added to injury when the potentially dangerous British men (they had not yet been tested for AIDS) were treated by health authorities as a graver threat to the nation than the most assuredly dangerous students from the African AIDS Belt. First, when the 600 returned to their HQ at Fort George, near Inverness, Scotland, the army wasted three weeks before issuing any warning against contacts with the soldiers. This was Christmastime. With many of the men, especially the single men, dispersed throughout Britain, the army sent out an all-points bulletin warning of the "new AIDS risk" in Britain's very midst. This was probably the right thing to do, yet the affected soldiers had additional cause for bitterness in the reflection that such bulletins had not been sent out warning against black African students, diplomats and tourists, who are apparently at liberty to infect unsuspecting whites.

There is no room for "racial sensitivity" when it comes to the AIDS pandemic. Yet Europe is losing precious time by hesitating to identify the disease as the "Gay/Black Plague." That shorthand description, while not perfectly accurate, is so close to the truth in the European context that its wide acceptance could yet save countless European lives.

Besides the AIDS risk and the continuing immigration crisis, Britain is caught in a maze of Third World diplomatic crime. While even the Royal Family is prosecuted for speeding, there are 17,654 people in Britain who can -- and often do -- rob, rape and murder without having their wrists slapped. These are the diplomats and their dependents. During the past 10 years, this foreign army of occupation has committed 546 serious crimes in Britain, an average of more than one each week. In the same period, 6,800 diplomatically immune British abroad have committed exactly four serious crimes. Clearly, a system which worked for the white world of the past must be changed to reflect contemporary racial realities.

During one recent six-month period, every last airline flight from Pakistan to Britain carried heroin in a sacrosanct diplomatic bag. In any event, this assertion went unrefuted during a 1986 court case. Some observers are wondering if Third World diplomats may prove to be a key cause of the entire Western drug crisis.

Mordechai Vanunu, the Israeli nuclear plant technician who told the world, via the Sunday Times, about his country's secret plant for manufacturing nuclear bombs, was kidnapped by Mossad agents in Rome, not Britain. Nonetheless, it was poor British security which may have made the abduction possible. According to an account in the Washington Post (Dec. 23, 1986), Israel learned of Vanunu's presence in Britain, and his plans to publish the truth about the nukes, only because "Britain's MI5 agents reportedly alerted their Mossad counterparts to [his] presence there."

Not wishing to embarrass Margaret Thatcher with yet another Israeli abduction on British soil -- the case of the bound Nigerian diplomat being fresh in British memories -- the Mossad plotted to entice Vanunu to the Continent. A blonde agent named "Cindy" did the trick.

The brazen Israel Firsters in the bosom of MI5 deserve to be sacked, but almost surely won't be.

Hillaire Belloc's The Cruise of the Nona, 1925 (Penguin Books, 1958) has been described as a cross between the Yachting Monthly and Mein Kampf. It mixes anecdotes about the author's sailing trip round Wales and southern England with discourses on religion, politics and philosophy. Some of the most interesting parts were devoted to the origins of WWI.

> An early declaration of the British attitude would have prevented war. When I came ashore again and reached London, I learned of the prolonged hesitation amongst the politicians -- men by their petty trade unused to and unfit for tasks of magnitude -- of the French President's letter and the ambiguous reply to it drafted and published, of the final voting when, by a majority of one, the cabinet decided upon war. Had the virility of such a decision been known even four brief days earlier, war would not have come -- but it was too late.

Although Belloc does not say so, it was the Ulster crisis that finally tilted the British cabinet by one vote to join the war and thereby raise it to the status of a global conflict -- a real holocaust of our times. Few people nowadays realize how close that vote was.

Britain's ambiguous answer to the French President's appeal for a British declaration of war gave the impression that Britain did not intend to get involved, no doubt because part of the cabinet dithered until the last moment. Prime Minister Asquith himself had no idea what the final decision would be.

> Men have fallen into the habit of what was called during the war "propaganda." They both give it and receive it. Upon every side what you hear (or what is concealed from you) is put forward (or concealed) with an object of advocacy and therefore distortion. It was perhaps during the war necessary, or at least necessary in those societies such as our own which had no national tradition of such a conflict. Men were made to swallow the most enormous camels.

> The most comic part of the affair was the attitude towards America. We dared not insult America, for we were naturally as keen on getting American help as is a drowning man on catching a deck chair .... In their ignorance many people came to believe it was the duty of the Americans to come over and help, and what was more astonishing still, it was represented to them as a matter of life and death, not to us but themselves. The Americans were told (heaven knows whether any of them believed it!) that if the Germans, Austrians, Bohemians, Bulgarians, Turks, etc. won in their push against the English, French and Italians, that if the half-baked won against the baked, the next thing would be a sailing of the conquerors over the seas for the rude domination of Scranton, Pa.

France. As hundreds of thousands of non-Europeans poured into France in recent years, the government never expelled as many as 100 at a time -- until last October 18. It was then that the National Immigration Office asked the state-owned charter airline, Air Minerve, to fly 101 blacks, most of them illegal immigrants involved in drug-dealing, home to their native Mali.

The left-wing guerrilla group, Direct Action, wasted only a few days before planting bombs at the Immigration headquarters and an Air Minerve office. The damage was considerable, but no one was injured.

Germany has the purest beer in the world. A law in effect since 1616 permits only malt, hops, yeast and water as ingredients. But now the European Court in Luxembourg is threatening to scrap the German law on "free trade" grounds, which has led 2½ million German beer drinkers to sign a petition in its defense.

British beers are commonly among the most adulterated. Denis Palmer, a British beer agent in Holland, writing in the Good Beer Guide, complains, "Our beers are shunned and treated with grave suspicion in most European lands." The reason? "All the fish-gut extract, onion skins, and other additives -- up to 28 in some brands -- which need not be noted on the labels." One nutrition expert told the Daily Mail, "Most [British] beer is undoubtedly sound -- but some of it should have a skull and crossbones on the label." Only on the Isle of Man is a pure beer law enforced.

The problem abroad is obtaining the real German article. Bavaria alone has 829 breweries, but, says British beer expert Graham Lees, "There seems to be one law ... for beer brewed for sale in West Germany, and another of anything goes for beer brewed for export." Even in Strasbourg, on the Rhine's west bank, the German beers on sale are full of additives. The real McCoy does not travel well and quickly goes stale.

The West German government is stoutly defending its need for pure beer laws, reminding the European Court that beer is a vital source of nutrients, providing up to one-fourth of the Germans' daily needs. The best solution for the rest of the world would be to import living Germans to set up small, first-rate breweries in each locale. Now that every American hamlet has a family of Chinese on hand to run a restaurant, why not a family of Germans to pass on the brewing secrets that the German-American brewers either don't know or, for economic reasons, want to keep to themselves.

Austria. Jews appear to be both surprised and angry that anti-Semitism has had a small boom in Austria. They don't blame it on the heavy-handed interference of world Jewry in last year's presidential election, during which Jews heaped massive insults on the winning candidate, Kurt Waldheim. Hunting for a scapegoat, Austrian Jews have zeroed in on Krone, one of the country's leading newspapers, which dared to back Waldheim before and during the election and dared to defend him against the war crime libels thrown at him. Anyone or anything that criticizes them ultimately becomes in the Jews' pathological dictionary "anti-Semitic." So the people of Austria now have a mass-circulation newspaper that is anti-Semitic. Financial masochists and other born losers should rush out and buy stock in Krone.

Yugoslavia. This artificial nation consists of six "republics," each with some degree of independence. The largest of the six is Serbia, which in turn contains two "autonomous provinces," Vojvodina on the northern border with Hungary, and Kosovo in the southwest, beside Albania. It was in Kosovo that Serbs say their nation was born, but today the proliferating Albanians there have grown into a six-to-one majority. There is excellent reason for believing that Kosovo will soon be a purely Albanian province.

First, Albanians on both sides of the Albania-Yugoslavia frontier have Europe's highest birthrate, triple that of Yugoslavia in general -- and refugees from the harshly Stalinist fatherland augment their kinsmen's numbers. Second, the Serbs in Kosovo can always flee to the other 80% of Serbia and feel at home, whereas the clannish Albanians don't care to leave Kosovo. Third, Kosovo is economically a part of the Third World, with a standard of living about one-third of Yugoslavia's. Thirty-five percent of the work force is unemployed, and federal development programs have failed repeatedly. Albanians have no alternative, but Serbs do. Fourth, the youthful, land-hungry Moslem Albanians are playing nasty, beating and raping the Orthodox Christian Serbs and vandalizing their homes. Fifth, they offer Serbs a carrot along with the stick. Despite deep poverty, land prices in Kosovo are five times higher than in the rest of Serbia. An acre of good farm land typically sells for about $35,000.

Delegations of frantic Serbs have marched on Belgrade, where measures to slow their so-called "forced emigration" have been adopted, including a ban on land sales between ethnic groups. But the law can't face up to demographic Manifest Destiny, as Serbs, like Christian Lebanese, Protestant Ulstermen and so many others are learning. Serbia is doomed to shrink physically by almost 20% -- but at least the other 80% enjoys relative ethnic purity.

Soviet Union. Opus 300 by Isaac Asimov (the title represents his 300th book) contains information that his father, Judah, was born in Petrovichi, 250 miles southwest of Moscow, on December 21, 1896. Judah, writes son Isaac, had difficulty obtaining a proper education because he was a Jew. Despite this handicap, the Asimovs were among the wealthiest folks in town. Isaac's paternal grandfather owned a mill and his maternal grandfather a general store. The Revolution, when it came, hardly touched these affluent citizens. Judah, who was friendly with the local commissars, organized a food cooperative and a library, and held readings in literary classics. The Asimovs were not included in the massacres of "class enemies" that decimated the goy bourgeoisie.

Judah's brother-in-law, Joseph Berman, had settled in New York before WWI and suggested he and his family try their luck in "America the golden." Although permission to emigrate in those days was almost impossible to obtain, the friends of the commissars had no trouble. They left Russia in January 1923.

"The consequences," writes Isaac, "were drastic, and in many ways for the worse." He had not fled from oppression or grinding poverty. He emphasizes the hard times his father had in New York, compared to his relatively easy life in Russia, both before and after the Revolution.

Israel. The Long Island newspaper, Newsday, was the half sponsor of a poll of West Bank Palestinians. When the results showed overwhelming support for the PLO and Yasser Arafat, Newsday, fearful of a backlash from its Jewish readers and advertisers, withdrew its sponsorship and refused to publish the story.

Because of the searing confessions of nuclear technician Mordechai Vanunu, the Israeli defector, now held incommunicado in an Israeli jail, Norway has asked that international inspectors be allowed to take a look at Zionist nuclear facilities. The Norwegian government over the years has supplied Israel with 20 tons of heavy water, a key A-bomb ingredient, on the promise it would be used only for research and peaceful purposes. The 1959 pact also gave Norway the right to inspect how the material was used.

Simon Wiesenthal, Nazi hunter extraordinary, is suing the Jerusalem Post for raking up old stories in its letters column about his alleged collaboration with the Gestapo in WWII. Some years ago Wiesenthal brought a similar suit, which he later dropped, against Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky, a fellow Jew, for making the same charges.

One letter from the Post's columnist, Wim van Leer, said Simon was a "protected person" in the Mauthausen concentration camp, where he was supposedly put in command of a labor battalion. Another letter reminded Post readers that Kreisky had called Wiesenthal a "liar and a cheat," in addition to accusing him of wartime dealings with the Germans.

Syria. Rumors that President Assad is building up a huge stock of chemical warfare weapons brought a stern and dramatic warning from Yitzhak Rabin that Israel has 4,000,000 gas masks at the ready along with more than sufficient chemical resistant clothing. Israel's defense minister emphasized that Assad shouldn't even "contemplate" chemical warfare, because he knew "full well' the "consequences." Could Rabin have been referring to those 100 or 200 nukes Israel has hidden out there in the Negev?

Swaziland. The king of this travesty of a country, Sobhuza II, has more children than the Old Woman in the Shoe. But the royal octogenarian knew what to do with 11 of his numerous offspring. He put them -- bare-breasted sons and bare-breasted daughters -- all on the back of his country's paper money, on a one lilangeli bill (worth 84¢). Swaziland, with its houses of ill repute and its gambling joints, is the fleshpot of white South Africans who want momentary surcease from the puritanical pressures of the Dutch Reformed Church.

South Africa. During WWII, Joseph Goebbels commissioned an extravagant film epic on the life of Paul Kruger, the Boer War hero who fought the British to a farethee-well at the turn of the century. Although it put Afrikaner history in the best possible light, the South African government, in obedience to the wishes of its powerful British and Jewish communities, banned the film in 1949. But now that the West and international Jewry (excluding Israel) are trying to destroy the white government, the Afrikaners are no longer as willing to cater to movie censors. Accordingly, the ruling National Party is taking another look at the film, which shows, among other unpleasant things, British troops raping Kruger's daughter-in-law. Though countrywide distribution is still forbidden, it has already been exhibited by special permission for two weeks in a Johannesburg theater.

Winnie Mandela who, with the help of the worldwide media propaganda machine, has been transfigured into a sort of black Joan of Arc, endured the slings and arrows of humiliation recently when she and her home were attacked twice within three months, not by those terrible white Afrikaners, but by those wonderful people of her own race, a gang of black youths.

In the first onslaught, Winnie was the target of soft drink cans, litter and sand. In the second, $500 in damage was done to her red brick house. Her fellow blacks were irate because of her support of a Negress who had been tried and found guilty of murdering her husband -- and because a soccer team composed of Winnie's family and friends had chased another team away from a nearby playing field. The marauding young blacks also disliked her for her "imperious and free-wheeling" lifestyle.

A white South African seaman, Reval Langeveld, 20, suffering from a ruptured intestine, was refused treatment by a hospital in Djibouti (once known as French Somaliland) after he collapsed on a passing cargo ship. The black government wanted no truck with anyone from Apartheidland. In the nick of time, Langeveld was flown to London by a British rescue service.

When Black History Month rolls around next year and white Americans are once again forced to hear all those teary tales, many of them completely phony, of U.S. hospitals refusing to accept dying black scientists and hemorrhaging black singers, somebody should bring up the name of Langeveld.

Almost reluctantly, Time (Mar. 2, 1987) admitted that the U.S. State Department had found "as many as 21 of the 30 members of the African National Congress's executive committee also belong to the [Communist] Party." But in its profile of Joe Slovo, the non-black chief of staff of the ANC's military wing, Time carefully omitted to inform its readers that Slovo is Jewish. (His parents emigrated from Lithuania to South Africa.) Neither did Time explain that South African demographic divisions are more tribal than racial. The ANC, for example is supported by the Xhosas (the Mandelas' tribe) and is more or less detested by the Zulus, South Africa's largest black population group.

India. Negro students are being ostracized in several Indian cities because of AIDS, which has killed only five Indians but perhaps as many as 50,000 black Africans. Recent mandatory testing turned up six Kenyans in central India and three or four Tanzanians in the south who were "positive." All were asked to leave. But the African students at New Delhi and Bombay refused to be tested, with more than 200 in the former city barring doctors and staging a nearly violent demonstration on February 27.

India has not yet ordered AIDS screening for those Africans who are not students, but, given its unsanitary environment, it had best get cracking and send all AIDS-carriers packing.

Pakistan. The country's leading nuclear physicist, Abdel Qader Khan, has announced that Pakistan now has a nuclear weapon. Although he took it back later, perhaps because of government pressure, Israel may well believe the story. If so, it may now be preparing a new bombing raid similar to the one that severely damaged the Iraqi reactor in Baghdad. The Pakis better oil up their anti-aircraft defenses.

As usual, the U.S. Congress is knee-jerkingly implementing Israel's policy of not allowing any Middle Eastern country but itself to have the luxury of a nuclear arsenal. The Zionists' leading senatorial frontmen, such as Alan Cranston, with his Jewish wife, and Robert Kasten, the drunk driver, are threatening to cut off financial aid to Pakistan unless it quickly stops its nuclear weapons research or proves it has no bomb.

China. The aesthetic prop is going great guns in the onetime Celestial Kingdom that is now the People's Republic. Plastic surgeons have been operating on thousands of Chinese women, rounding their eyes, making their noses more prominent and inflating their breasts. One surgeon claims he has "Europeanized" 10,000 sets of eyes since 1981. There have even been a few sex-change operations.

In the days of Chairman Mao such remodeling jobs were outlawed and considered the height of vanity and bourgeois decadence. Mao was absolutely right. There is Nordic beauty and there is Oriental beauty -- and never the twain should mix.

Black African students in China staged another big protest on January 8. This time 200 marched more than 12 miles through Peking, from their campus to the embassy district, to protest an anonymous letter ridiculing their manners. The last big Negro march in Peking came last June, when several hundred protested a black-Chinese student clash in Tianjin a month earlier. (Though the media never said so, perhaps it was jealousy at the sight of blacks freely marching which provoked Chinese students to demonstrate later in the year.)

The "hate letter" which angered the blacks in January said (in English) that the Chinese would not allow "any Negro to hang about our universities to annoy Chinese girls and to introduce on our academic ground manners acquired by life in tropical forests." It warned that if blacks did not "correct" their behavior, new "lessons" would follow "based on the experience of Americans, who know very well what to do to curb the Negroes in their country." (Here the letter was sadly mistaken.)

In their latest march, the Africans chanted rhythmically, "We are going back!" Stopping at the Moroccan Embassy, they met with Ambassador Abderrahim Harkett, the dean of the African diplomatic corps, and asked him, "Why should we stay here in these universities to study when they don't want us?" Some students then decided to boycott their examinations as a protest -- a precedent which will likely inspire test-shy black students in other parts of the world to compose similar "hate letters."

The New York Times observed, "Previous demonstrations by African students have embarrassed the Chinese, who have sought to widen their diplomatic role in Africa and who maintain military and special diplomatic missions there."

If Instauration may be so bold as to advise the yellow race, this is no time for the Chinese (or any civilized people) to be "widening their role" in Africa. As of late last year, only one active case of AIDS had been reported among the one billion Chinese. As for the students, with their chant of "We are going back!" -- let us hope that their hosts take them at their word. Those 200 marchers may well include 20 or more carriers of the AIDS virus. Why should pitifully poor Chinese workers help subsidize Negro AIDS-carriers of mediocre intelligence at Chinese universities when millions of their own sons and daughters are not going to college?

Japan. The Japanese are so racist that Japan Airlines stewardesses will demurely ask their countrymen, "Will it bother you to sit next to a gaijin?" Gaijin is the Japanese word for foreigner.

In Tokyo bars when a white customer drops in, a Japanese barfly is likely to remark, "It stinks in here." The notice out front of a sauna reads, "Foreigners refrain from entering." Some discos won't let in non-Japanese customers because they are "too noisy."

A Japanese scientist has written a book claiming that the left side of the brain is more developed in his people than in the brains of foreigners. Prime Minister Nakasone, noted for his pointed statements about the mental inferiority of blacks and Hispanics, has gone on record as saying the Japanese are the only people really capable of enjoying the beauty of flowers.

At the same time, Japanese intellectuals have been known to depreciate their appearance and small stature, a bit of self-hating which partly accounts for the popularity of Nordic models in the Land of the Rising Sun. Also, despite their prosperity and industrial prowess, the Japanese still spend a great deal of time and money analyzing and frequently stealing every new Western invention. Finally, if the Japanese even partially exhibited their racial prejudice in Western Europe, they would soon be accused of violating the hate laws and sent to jail.

Anti-Semitic books, some of them best-sellers, written by both little-known and well-known Nipponese authors, are beginning to appear in Japan, where the only Semites are diplomats, businessmen, tourists and a few other strays from the West. One such opus is by Masami Uno, a writer who claims the rise of the yen in the last two years was engineered by American Jews to wreck the Japanese economy. Uno's paperback opus, which has already sold 150,000 copies, also states that Jews control the major multinational corporations.

Uno assures his readers that his approach is educational. "I'm really saying Japanese are dumb and they need to understand how powerful Jews are to understand how the United States works." Those Japanese who read Uno's book may be less dumb about Jewish power in the future. In any event, they'll know more about such matters than Americans, who have the greatest difficulty obtaining books in English on similar themes.

Australia. The news from down under is not all bad these days. To begin with, Bjelke-Petersen, whose political obituary had been written by all the journalistic reptiles, was re-elected as Premier of Queensland with an increased majority. He then told the Federal Prime Minister that he, Hawke, wouldn't be in office long.

Sometimes the Australian government sponsors films to be shown abroad which reveal a good deal. Two such films are Out of Time, Out of Place and Peppimenarti. The first is a fascinating study of anthropology in Australia, with an intelligent scientist as the narrator. It concerns two types of hominids which coexisted in the continent for at least 6,000 years. The first, called Mungo man, provides the earliest example of a modern skull to be found anywhere in the world. Of course, this is purely fortuitous, and the narrator makes out a good case for the type being Mongoloid and having come over a short stretch of sea via New Guinea during the last ice age, when the seas were lower than they are now. The other type is extraordinarily primitive, though its remains are, also fortuitously, later in date. It very obviously descended from Java man, a type of Homo erectus who lived within ten days walk of Mungo man, at Kow Swamp.

Probably the two types are so different that miscegenation was very difficult. Eventually, however, it seems to have happened, and the narrator reasonably concludes that the modern aborigine descends from that cross. Carleton Coon's name is not mentioned, but such a finding is directly in line with his suggestions in The Origin of Races: (a) that modern aborigines descend from Java man and (b) that they were hominised by Mongoloid admixture, just as the Negroes were hominised by Europid admixture.

Peppimenarti tells how the aborigines of Australia are being encouraged to take over tribal lands they once "owned" and to cut loose from the pernicious, culturally destructive influence of the mission stations. Unfortunately, this does not by any means involve a break with white culture. An aboriginal spokesman explains how they still expect to receive the things to which the white man has accustomed them, especially beer. Much of their revenue comes from rounding up bush cattle which have strayed from white ranches in the area. White helicopter pilots clearly play an important part in these roundups.

The Aborigines, who speak in broken sentences, are obviously not high on the IQ totem pole, but they have more common sense than many a MENSA member. To begin with, they don't believe in unemployment benefits. Everyone works or gets out (which means losing his part in the tribal commonwealth). If a man rapes a young girl, he dies. He does not just spend time in prison and come out again none the worse, as one of the elders slowly explains. Nor is the death penalty by any means rare in the tribal areas -- as is also made clear. If a man steals, he is badly beaten the first time. If he continues thieving, he may be killed. The preparations for one such beating take place on the screen, and it is explained that on a previous occasion the criminal had his bones broken. Spearing in the legs is another common punishment.

Strong emphasis on tribal customs, including ritual dances which last for several days, is an important feature of aboriginal life. In Peppimenarti we see one such ritual, which involves the "circumcision" of young boys. They are petrified with fear, as well they might be if, as one suspects, they are going to be whistle-cocked. Still, even that is a birth-control measure.

Aboriginal education involves teaching children about the dreamtime, in which each of them takes the form of a different animal. They have some pride of race, because though only a half-caste is bright enough to work out their accounts, we are told that he has no standing compared with that of the full-blooded tribal elders. The elders have the power to decide who shall marry whom, as aborigines differ in skin color and may not marry outside their skin caste.

Which is better, to have the Aborigines "integrated" into slums on the outskirts of white townships or fully involved in tribal rituals under the supervision of their elders? No Instaurationist can fail to come up with the right answer to that question.

A racial mini-riot took place last year in a Queensland town between white Aussies and Aborigines. Ten people were seriously injured and two hotels were badly damaged. The violence erupted in a raid on the town of Goondiwindi by 100 Aborigines (the Australians call them blacks) in a 22-car convoy, in so-called retaliation for one of the Stone Agers being refused entry to a disco.

At a German Remembrance Day service last November, a pastor spent much of his oratory on Nazi concentration camps, without ever mentioning Dresden or Hamburg. Nor did he make even the slightest reference to Germany's war dead. Some who attended the service complained to the Australian Civil Liberties Union that, although they were habituated to anti-German propaganda (how could they not be?), they felt it might at least be omitted in German memorial services.

The Australian Council for Overseas Aid has chided Prime Minister Robert Hawke for his obsessive love affair with Israel and his refusal to pursue a fair and balanced Middle Eastern policy. Hawke was asked, since he was so openly against racial discrimination in South Africa, why he couldn't be consistent and give the dispossessed Palestinians a break. He was reminded that Australia's contribution to the United Nations agency that helps Palestinians had been slashed from $1.4 million to $250,000. The ACOA further stated:

> In the occupied territories, 1.5 million people have no democratic right to vote, must at all times carry special identity cards, and are subject to arbitrary search as well as administrative detention for up to six months without charges being laid and without trial.
> The emergency regulations in force in the West Bank and Gaza are similar to those now in force in South Africa, except they have been in force for 19 years.

Joining the rest of the world in its latest outburst of anti-Nazi mania, the Australian government and media are gunning for aging citizens from Eastern Europe, who supposedly collaborated with the Germans in WWII. Although many of the accusations are based on evidence supplied by the KGB, Australian authorities are going along with the charade.

John Loftus, a professional anti-Nazi witch-hunter from the U.S., has been given a media platform to make irresponsible slanders that Nazi war criminals in Australia are spying for the Soviet Union and have links with Central American death squads.

The hysteria was set off by an Australian Broadcasting radio program, produced by Mark Aarons, a Jew who neatly camouflages his racism with ultra-leftism.

But the Nazi hunters have overplayed their hand here, and the reaction is in full flower. One tactical blunder of the vengeance brigade has been to focus on the Allied intelligence services (which sometimes utilized Nazis) as well as on the Nazis themselves. This is the route pioneered in America by John Loftus. It has proven especially counterproductive in the hands of Mark Aarons, given the fact that his family was long prominent in the Communist Party.

A leading Jew and a leading Catholic have both attacked Aarons & Co. in the strongest possible terms. Dr. Frank Knopfelmacher was described as "perhaps the most brilliant Jewish political intellectual in the country," who, as a psychology reader at Melbourne University, has served as "intellectual godfather to many of Australia's leading political thinkers." According to Nicholas Rothwell, in the Weekend Australian (Dec. 13-14, 1986):

> Dr. Knopfelmacher rails against the activities of the professional Jewish lobby -- "socio-political vultures, mainly American, but a few Australians, too, for whom the destruction of our lives has become the economic base of Holocaust Industries, Inc." And, he says, "Ethnic rancour will be augmented; anti-Semitism is bound to gain momentum."

Equally vehement is the "white ethnic" leader B.A. Santamaria, whom Rothwell calls "Australia's most prominent conservative spokesman." Santamaria is focusing on "the ethnic slur contained in the accusations leveled wholesale against nameless members of the Baltic, Ukrainian and Croatian communities." And he demands to know why only Axis crimes are being pursued relentlessly the world over.

Rothwell summarizes the situation as "Nazi hunters on the rampage with peculiar hidden agendas."

One Aussie, Bruce Ruxton, president of a veterans' organization, did not bend the knee, as most of his countrymen did, upon the arrival of Archbishop Desmond Tutu. Ruxton called the diminutive black South African "a witch doctor dressed up in archbishop's clothes," who came to peddle race hatred.

Tutu might have received an even cooler reception from certain Israelis if he had visited that country. By now his anti-Semitic remarks are catching up with him. A few weeks ago, Knesset members representing three different parties condemned him with one voice and demanded he "apologize publicly to the Jewish people for his bigotry." If Tutu doesn't watch it, he is going to wake up someday and find he is no longer a saint, a downshift occasionally experienced by media stars who for one reason or another interrupt their ceaseless and voluminous praise of Jewry with a word or two of nay-saying.

Philippines. What kind of a democracy is it when the government can step in and shut down a newspaper it doesn't happen to like? Last January, a gaggle of government bureaucrats put an end to the Manila Daily Express, which was owned by a friend of the exiled Marcos. The excuse was that the paper, with a circulation of 117,000, was losing money. But Filipino insiders know very well that the cause of the paper's demise was its constant criticism of Madam President, whose "democratic" government controls the Manila Journal Co., which owns three newspapers and three television stations, as well as some radio stations. This media empire, unsurprisingly, has only nice things to say about Corazon Aquino.

To make the present regime in the Philippines into a democracy takes a lot of verbal prestidigitation, the kind of wordplay at which the Western media are so expert. First you lie to get the "fascist" right-wing dictator overthrown. Then you lie to keep the "democratic" left-wing dictator in power.

Despite all the talk of land reform put out by Cory Aquino after she had taken over the Philippines by the triple whammy of a media coup, a street mob putsch and torrents of propaganda from on-the-make politicians like Senator Richard Lugar and Representative Stephen Solarz, the Aquino family still owns a 14,820-acre hacienda, one of the islands' largest estates. Because her troops shot and killed 20 land reformists last January, some Filipinos thought that the least their leader could do was to show her good faith in her often vaunted agrarian principles by giving up her share of her family's enormous land holdings. But she still refuses to act, either in the case of the Aquino spread or in the case of land reform in general, although the appropriate legislation has been on her desk for almost a year.

Brazil. While blond, blue-eyed couples in Scandanivia, Canada and the U.S. rush to adopt babies from the worst slums of Bogotá, Bangkok and Calcutta, many infertile Israeli couples are not the least bit brainwashed on the matter. They take their adoption needs directly to one of the few places left on earth where Nordic traits and surplus children still go together -- namely, the German-settled district of southern Brazil.

An esitmated 5 million abandoned children of all ages wander among Brazil's prolific population of 140 million. About 4.95 million of these youngsters hold positively no attraction for the race-smart Israelis, who proceed to far-southern cities like Itajai and Curitiba, where baby-trafficking gangs help persuade destitute German-Brazilian mothers to part with their little ones. One Israeli woman named Arlete Hilu has helped arrange from 500 to 1,000 adoptions for her countrymen in the latter city alone.

Adoption by foreigners is quite legal in Brazil, but only when there is no profit involved. When Hilu and others like her were found to be making up to $10,000 per select baby, an arrest warrant was issued and she fled to Israel. Meanwhile, the Itajai ring of 26 Brazilians (religion unstated) has sold about 500 fair children in the last few years, nearly all of them to Israeli couples. The mothers were falsely told that affluent Brazilian couples in the area would be adopting their children.

The Israeli connection is highly significant in light of pestering rumors that Israelis took some homeless German children away with them in the chaotic years following WWII. Given factors like the 30% outmarriage rate among American Jews (mainly to Majority members), and the steady darkening of Israel's own Jewry, it appears that race must be a subject very much on Jewish minds these days -- not just in some abstract or theoretical way, but in terms of a specific issue to be resolved: "How white do we as a people wish to be?"

At the opposite extreme are those mindless white Gentiles in every country who would happily bring misfeatured cinematic creatures like E.T. into their race's germ plasm if only they could. Yet there has been one positive development. The 1979 (U.S.) Indian Child Welfare Act says that state courts have no jurisdiction in custody battles involving full-blooded American Indians. Several Western tribes have literally "declared war" on white adopters and are insisting, with some success, that the palefaces return the thousands of children they have taken. To date, about 600 Indian children have been returned.

No Surrender -- Yet!

For "de-holidaying" Martin Luther King's birthday in Arizona, the new Republican governor, Evan Mecham, showed exemplary courage. He will, of course, pay dearly for it. Already the Democrats in his state, working through a renegade Republican, Ed Buck, have initiated a recall campaign, and the media are after him for having made some questionable appointments.

So far Mecham has not shown the white flag, which would have been raised long ago by any other politician who found himself the target of such an avalanche of media and minority wrath. In fact, in the middle of the "scandal," he went off to Washington, where his proposal to end the 55-mph speed limit received overwhelming support at the National Governors Association meeting.

Loose-Lipped Judges

Evan Mecham has an admirer in Judge Jack Turner of Dade County (FL), who created an uproar when he stated apropos of Rev. King, "He is an immoral man," who doesn't deserve a holiday. Surprisingly, when the media raged and various black organizations demanded an apology, Turner stuck to his guns. He even expanded his Kingophobia: "I have nothing but contempt for the man and the way he lived his life."

It took two weeks to turn Turner around. (They always turn around in the end.) The pro forma apology was read from a prepared statement in the presence of a cohort of black ministers.

> An unfortunate controversy has arisen as a result of my expression of a personal opinion about Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Although I am entitled to my personal opinion as a citizen, I acknowledge that it was inappropriate for me to express a personal opinion about Dr. King in connection with a judicial hearing, however informal. I acknowledge the importance of Dr. King's contribution to the civil rights movement in America.
> I extend my unqualified apology to the community and to all concerned for expressing my personal opinion in the course of my official duties and hope that my apology will amicably resolve the controversy that has occurred.

Judge Turner's anti-King remarks, not meant for the public ear, were fed to the press by two lawyers, Loren Granoff and Robert Soifer.

Two Illinois judges have also come under fire for their outspokenness. Duane G. Walter of Page County told a black defendant he "should stay in Chicago," where he belongs. Arthur J. Ciselik of Cook County informed a female lawyer she should be "home raising a family." Intensive efforts are being made to remove both judges from the bench.

Rare Birds

Samuel Brown, a Queens (NY) cop whose skin is darker than his name, had the guts and the decency to reject a promotion to sergeant that would have boosted his yearly pay by $7,000. Asked the reason for this extraordinary gesture, Brown replied, "It wasn't a difficult decision . . . . I just don't believe in racial quotas." Brown was angered by a court ruling that black officers must be promoted to sergeant even if they failed the promotion test. A 14-year police veteran, Brown got higher than 65.3, the passing score for blacks, but lower than the 79.2 passing grade required of whites.

At first minority cops claimed the tests were culturally biased. The courts agreed. When the exams were rewritten to be entirely job-specific, minority members still did poorly. This time they no longer charged that the tests were biased; they said the results were! The courts caved in again and ruled that even those who flunked must be promoted.

One white officer, Thomas Breen, who had been recommended for a citation for rescuing two people from a burning building last year and who had received two citations for meritorious conduct during his career, commented sourly: "There's a female black officer in my command that got a 59 on the promotion test. Is this discrimination?" Unfortunately, Officer Breen's justifiable complaint was made when his police radio was open. He was immediately suspended without pay and must now face a department trial.

Also to be commended is brave Nancy Bradshaw of the Omaha police force. Nancy could have been promoted to sergeant, but refused, saying the promotion offer came not because of merit or seniority, but because of quotas set up by Omaha's affirmative action program. In a recent test she failed to score among the top 60, yet she and four other female or minority members, who also scored low, were put on the promotion list. The four others apparently had no qualms about being promoted on the basis of their sex or dark pigmentation, rather than on their abilities.

Negritude

A negritude conference in Miami several months ago was attended by black intellectuals from three continents. Aimé Césaire, the Martinique poet, called for "a rehabilitation of our values by ourselves, the rerooting of ourselves within a history, within a geography, within a culture."

Majority members can only salute any attempt by Negroes to find themselves and be themselves. The problem is the light years' distance between Aimé Césaire and, say, the wriggling, facially reconstructed Michael Jackson -- between Léopold Senghor, another black poet, who is also a professor of Latin and Greek, and a crackpot Harlem crack addict.

Conferences will do little to lift up American blacks. Welfare only pushes them further down the cultural scale, as does affirmative action, which institutionalizes and publicizes the inability of blacks to "make it" in a Western industrial society. Separation is the only possibility -- not just the physical separation that now exists in the inner cities and in other areas of black concentration, but cultural separation as well. Nothing is more sad and pathetic than blacks trying to be whites, unless it is whites trying to be blacks.

Rating the Congressmen

Every special interest group in America has its own system for rating the votes of U.S. senators and congressmen. If immigration is the most important issue for the future of our people, then a scale based entirely on good and bad immigration votes would be the best way of separating America's good and bad politicians.

Americans for Immigration Control (AIC, 717 Second St., N.E., Suite 307, Washington, DC 20002) has come to the rescue. The January-February issue of Immigration Watch has given every congressman a rating on a scale of 100 based upon votes taken on five important immigration matters. (The Senate is not included because senators declined to take straight up-or-down votes on vital aspects of the immigration crisis.) Four of the votes count 10 points each and the fifth, on the decisive matter of amnesty for illegal aliens, rightly counts 60 percent.

Glancing over the ratings, one readily perceives where the true spirit of America burns brightest at this late hour. Alabama's seven representatives have ratings of 90, 90, 90, 90, 90, 90 and 80; Mississippi's five get 100, 100, 90, 90 and 10 (the renegade is 77-year-old Democrat Jamie L. Whitten, a former white supremacist who now caters to black electoral racism).

At the other extreme, only three of New England's 24 congressmen scored above a 30: the two from rock-ribbed New Hampshire, who both garnered 100s, and one of Maine's two, who grabbed a 70. Lower New England seems to be a political lost cause with regard to Third World immigration.

The dynamics of race are blatantly obvious in a big state like Texas. Most Lone Star congressmen are white, and 19 of these 22 gentlemen -- regardless of party affiliation -- scored between 70 and 90 on the AIC tally. A twentieth did not vote for one reason or another. The only "turncoats" were J.I. "Jake" Pickle, a Methodist, and Jim Wright, then House Majority Leader and now Speaker of the House. Pickle and Wright got 10s.

As for the five Hispanic and black members of the Texas delegation, their scores included three 0s and two 10s. In other words, Texas politics is polarized on the issue of immigration along racial, not party, lines. AIC deserves America's gratitude for making this plain.

As might be expected, Northern and Western Democrats have the worst records on immigration, while Southern Democrats and Northern and Western Republicans have moderate records. The single strong group is Southern and border state Republicans, only one of whom had an AIC tally below 70. Instaurationists might have guessed that the one backslider is Georgia's Newt Gingrich, the 1985 Majority Renegade of the Year, who scored a dismal 30. Is it any wonder that the liberal mediacrats praise Gingrich nonstop? As the one blatant Third World-appeaser among Southern Republicans, the Pennsylvania-born Gingrich truly represents the cutting edge of progressive treason.

Nestor Speaks

At age 98, Hamilton Fish, New York congressman (1920-45) and Grand Old Isolationist (last of a great breed), wrote a letter to the New York Post (Jan. 31, 1987) decrying U.S. entanglement in WWII and blasting Churchill for not taking advantage of "two opportunities" to make peace with Germany. Fish said FDR should have let Hitler and Stalin "fight it out to their mutual destruction."

Better Out Than Dead

The East Cleveland (OH) City Council has only one white member, John R. Tasin. Correction! The council had only one white member. Mr. Tasin resigned in February as a result of a slew of death threats, one of them in the form of a skeleton of a bird delivered to his wife in a shoebox. In all, Tasin said he had received more than two dozen threats against his life in the past year or so from "misguided anti-white people that challenge almost anything a white person does."

East Cleveland is one of the blackest splotches in the U.S.

Forsyth County Defense Fund

Whites who showed their opposition to the black invasion of Forsyth County (GA) were arrested on a variety of trumped-up charges and will soon be brought to trial. In preparation for the legal tangle, which could result in jail sentences for the Majority members who dared to exercise their First Amendment rights, a Forsyth County Defense Fund has been established. Contributions may be mailed to Mark Watts, Box 884, Cumming, GA 30130.

Damned with Faint Praise

The following paragraph appeared in Mike Gunderloy's Factsheet Five (Feb. 1987), a survey of the contents of the nation's small magazines and newsletters:

> Instauration. The reader must be warned that these people are racist -- that is, they believe in racial differences -- but not hatemongers (I won't say the same about all of the people who write letters to them). They tend to run a mix of scholarly articles and news tidbits on how minorities are destroying American mainstream culture. The ideas here are potentially dangerous, but their suppression would be vastly more so.

Though it is tantamount to giving him the kiss of death, we congratulate Mike Gunderloy for defending our right to publish. What's more, we forgive him for his unwarranted fears and half-concealed anti-WASPism. Factsheet Five's address is 6 Arizona Ave., Rensselaer, NY 12144-4502. It's a quarterly, but you can buy it by the issue at $2 per.

Dubious Ally

An Orthodox Jew, Michael Bobrow by name, writing in the staunchly Catholic The Wanderer (Jan. 29, 1987), acknowledges the intellectual muscle of U.S. Jewry, praising its influence in foreign policy, but attacking it for the shambles it has made of domestic policy. Bobrow applauds the Jewish establishment for opposing the spread of Soviet influence in the Middle East and for bolstering the security of Israel, while accusing it of exerting a "permissive and morally corrupt" influence at home, especially on young Americans of all races and religions.

One-third of American Jewry is "religiously inclined," writes Bobrow, and is "an asset to the political and social life of the U.S." But, alas, Orthodox Jews "don't run the show." The show is run by the "so-called Jewish Lobby which . . . is dominated by radical and liberal secularists who detest not only Christianity, but Orthodox Judaism and our sacred Hebraic Torah as well."

Bobrow proceeds to offer non-Jews some good advice. "[N]o Christian concerned for America or for the fundamentals of Judeo-Christian morality should fear to criticize openly these powerful and pernicious liberal Jewish groups."

Unfortunately, Mr. B is whistling in the dark. Past experience amply demonstrates that the Christians he is addressing would rather be crucified than utter one peep of criticism of these "Jewish groups."

Would Orthodox Jews make a trusted ally for the American Majority? They don't hesitate to join those heterodox Jews that Bobrow finds so obnoxious when it comes to passing the collection box for Israel, pressing for more U.S. aid to the Zionist state and for more U.S. military involvement in the Middle East.

What good would it do to help a few "good" Jews clean up the Jewish act at home, if we still have to go to war for them abroad? Sometimes a 50% ally is worse than a 100% enemy.

Now They See It, Now They Don't

The Department of Agriculture came out with a report broadly hinting that "many Agriculture officials in the north-central part of the state [Arkansas] are members of the KKK" and of other extremist groups. Just one day later the department's civil rights chief, Lawrence Bembry, backed off by saying that the charges lacked "firm evidence." A lower echelon USDA worker in Arkansas, Susie Harris, chimed in, "We've never even heard a hint or a joke or a rumor" about extremist groups.
